The Testosterone Hypothesis How Hormones Regulate The Life Cycles Of Civilization:

The Testosterone Hypothesis Roy Barzilai, 2015-05-30 Sex Life Death What is it that drives us toward sex fuels life and makes death inevitable as it turns out it's the same thing Testosterone Not only does testosterone fuel the passion for reproduction and play a critical role in the length of our lives it is an integral component to the mechanism of human civilization its triumphs and its tragedies In order to understand the forces that drive the life cycles of human cultures and that form the engine of history The Testosterone Hypothesis goes to the most fundamental building blocks of human neuroscience Our hormones are the impetus for our history This groundbreaking research proposes that the profound transformations in social mood that bring the rise and fall of civilizations are caused by biological cycles and directed by hormones Hormones regulate and control the way the human mind perceives the world understands the nature of the good and forms social organizations and political orders accordingly At a time when the course of civilization seems to be more uncertain than ever driven toward pessimism and even despair it is enlightening to take a new multi disciplinary approach to studying the history of Western civilization Overthrowing the conventional reductionist approach to science by integrating different disciplines from evolution biology neuroscience and psychology to the history and philosophy of Western civilization we can reach a new understanding of the human mind and of our civilization as a complex adaptive living system To subdue the animalistic impulses that motivate our actions means to be guided by rational thought rather than primordial instincts and behavior this will propel man to the next leap forward in human evolution Our civilization is aging into a pathological state of depression The insights of The Testosterone Hypothesis can guide us to solutions with which we can restore the vibrant mindset that built the modern world International Bibliography of Eating Disorders, 1977-1986, 1987 Abstract A bibliography for clinical dietitians food and nutrition researchers and other health professionals provides 2543 technical references covering eating disorders grouped among 33 categories The categories range from behavioral biology body organ and system biology genetics and immunology to metabolism neoplasia pharmacology psychiatry public health and toxicology Each entry includes the title of the publication its authors literature citation and keywords Author and extensive keyword indices are appended Sex Wars Roy Barzilai, 2018-03-06 We are a world at war Gender race and religious wars are intensifying Political disputes over nationalism and globalism are threatening Western liberty with a return to the primitive tribalist mentality of collectivism Sex Wars offers a new perspective on the historical social and ideological trends that drive human civilization Roy expands on his last book The Testosterone Hypothesis to further explore how secret biological and psychological forces even cosmic forces drive the evolution of human cultures and the course of history This research presented in this book reveals how sex hormones regulate the sexual organization of human societies They compel mankind to form cultures based either on family values led by strong independent men or a feminist communist social structure Testosterone levels motivate man to grow and seek independence and masculine virtues or else to bow down in subordination to social controls and big government paternalism It is a dominance hormone that elevates mankind to command nature but its decline can bring him down into a state of impotence and despair even to self destruction Testosterone structures society in dominance hierarchies driving groups to unite in common goals for territorial ambitions to form nation states with secure borders to establish law and order under the banner of individual rights and liberty which the West has experienced since the Enlightenment However its collapse propels group conflict and tribal warfare for global conquest and submission under communist or fascist ideologies such as the Dark Age religious doctrines of Islamic jihad driven by sexual repression depression and aggression Continuing on the path of the scientific revolution led in physics by Newton and in biology by Darwin equipped with the modern tools of neuroscience and evolutionary psychology we can now create a similar revolution in the social sciences and humanities to bring the next leap forward in human knowledge
