

THE TRAGEDY OF GREAT POWER POLITICS

JOHN J. MEARSHEIMER

"[John Mearsheimer's] target is the optimistic view of geopolitics that grew up after the cold war's end in 1989. He demolishes all the main components of that happy vision."

Wither Power Politics? Bradley Axmith, 2013-01-02 Master s Thesis from the year 2009 in the subject Politics Topic Peace and Conflict Security course US Foreign Policy International Relations in the Caspian Sea Region language English abstract The New Great Game in the Caspian Sea Region received moderate attention from scholars following the collapse of the Soviet Union because it resembled the continuation of rivalry between Washington and Moscow For the eight Caspian republics the discovery of vast oil and gas deposits was the key to securing the newly independent states sovereignty away from Moscow s control toward integration with Europe and the United States This thesis analyses the US treatment of the Caspian Sea Region between 1991 and 2001 in order to measure whether its policies were crafted according to Realist tenets in formulating policy designed to advance its security The historical record seen through Offensive Realism presents evidence that US foreign policy was governed by principles not balance of power considerations led by the false notion that democratic Russia would act in accordance with US goals Intent on fostering democracy in Russia the United States denied the competitive nature of international politics refusing to criticize abuses by Moscow in the region and failing to intervene when US interests were marginalised The US failed to prevent Russia from refashioning conditions conducive to the reabsorption of the Caucasus and Central Asia as a sphere of influence nor did it account for China s expanded role and trajectory as a challenge to US power This analysis shows for example that Russia s proximity and willingness to use force exceeded the capabilities of the US use of its global predominance to shape regional events

The Problem of Political Identity - The Meaning of Great Projects Politics in Contemporary Russia Anatoly Reshetnikov, 2010-07-19 Master s Thesis from the year 2010 in the subject Politics Region Russia grade A Central European University Budapest language English abstract The problem of political identity is one of the most topical issues in constructivist IR theory The understanding of identity construction as well as the adequate interpretation of its foreign policy implications can help explain the meanings behind the actions of major international actors The work deals with the problem of political identity in contemporary Russia by engaging with and extending the temporal scope of the constructivist analysis conducted by Ted Hopf in his book Social Construction of International Politics It suggests that the great projects politics of contemporary Russia which is linked to the specificity of its political identity and seems to be similar to that of the late Soviet period can in fact be better understood if another work on Russian identity The Ethics of Postcommunism History and Social Praxis in Russia by Sergei Prozorov is also taken into account Hopf s analysis while providing a valuable theoretical framework and linking the state s identity to the great power status does not trace the evolution of the latter status and confines itself to two years of Russia s development namely 1955 and 1999 Prozorov s book while thoroughly analyzing the identity of contemporary Russian state is limited within the domestic realm and fails to address the idea of great power which Hopf believes to be an integral part of Russian political discourse and which is possible to interpret only if the analysis extends beyond national borders The research incorporates Prozorov s theoretical contribution into the framework of Hopf thus merging the mentioned approaches and making them applicable to the contemporary Russian condition both domestically and within IR Regional Leadership in Post-Soviet Eurasia Irina Busygina, Svetlana Krivokhizh, 2023-05-22

This book explores power in international relations in a world characterized by the growing competition of major powers for smaller nations Focusing on the major powers and smaller countries of Eurasia it argues that power in international relations is different from coercion and is rather a social contract between a leader state and follower states where reciprocity is key and where leadership relationships cannot be adequately explained by focusing solely on the leader It challenges the perception that genuine regional leadership is quite common contending instead that it is rare that much more often major powers make claims for leadership and that regional leadership does not indicate the status of a particular state but rather the social role of the leader which is recognized by its followers a role which is always relative and based on communication and constant interaction with followers The book highlights the important role followers play in recognizing regional power the importance for a state s regional leadership strategy in creating and holding a valuable position attractive for followers and delivering greater value to followers compared to other potential leaders International Affairs, 2002 The Next Great Clash Michael Levin, 2008 Of Theories 12 Long Cycles and Kondratieff Waves 14 The Clash of Civilizations or The West against The Rest 20 The Number of States 21 Phases of Imperial Expansion and Contraction 22 Petroleum Consumption 2005 Projected for 2025 24 U S Troops Deployed Abroad 30 Defense Budgets China Russia and the United States 1995 2004 36 China Cycles 40 China s Primary Alliance Patterns and Military Strategy 47 Russia s Weapons Sales to China 1995 2005 48 China s Trade with Russia 1991 2005 105 China India Balance Sheet 127 Notes 133 Bibliography 163 Index 183

Absolute and relative gains in the American decision to release nuclear weapons over Hiroshima and Nagasaki Joe Majerus, 2014-11-11 Master s Thesis from the year 2014 in the subject Politics General and Theories of International Politics grade 80 100 University of Leicester Department of Politics and International Relations course International Relations language English abstract The question of whether states pursue absolute or relative gains in international politics has divided neo realism and neo liberalism for quite some time now Thus whereas neo realists contend that states seek comparative advantages relative to other actors neo liberal scholars argue that they are primarily interested in the accomplishment of absolute individual gains In applying social constructivist ideas however this paper will attempt to demonstrate that such a preference for relative or absolute gains is not naturally predetermined but inextricably linked to the continual re construction of states national identities and interests In other words it is political actors own conception and definition of international relations which ultimately determines their concern for absolute or relative gains By analyzing the decision making process of the Truman Administration for using nuclear weapons against the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in August 1945 this case study will show that American leaders were altogether much more preoccupied with achieving absolute rather than relative gains Such absolute considerations were simultaneously influenced by the pressures of an anarchic self help system as well as by specific domestic imperatives and the personal views of individual policy makers on how to best handle international problems and exigencies More concretely American decision makers believed that only the realization of absolute gains such as swift socio economic recovery and the creation of a more stable and peaceful security environment would ultimately ensure their country s long term international position in both absolute and relative terms
