The Charisma of Distant Places Courtney Luckhardt, 2019-07-15 This cultural history of early medieval travel and religion reveals how movement affected society demonstrating the connectedness of people and regions between 500 and 850 CE In The Charisma of Distant Places Courtney Luckhardt enriches our understanding of migration through her examination of religious movement Vertical links to God and horizontal links to distant regions identified religious travelers both men and women as holy connected to the human and the divine across physical and spiritual distances Using textual sources material culture and place studies this project is among the first to contextualize the geographic and temporal movement of early medieval people to reveal the diversity of religious travel from the voluntary journeys of pilgrims to the forced travel of Christian slaves Luckhardt offers new ways of understanding ideas about power holiness identity and mobility during the transformation of the Roman world in the global Middle Ages By focusing on the religious dimensions of early medieval people and the regions they visited this book addresses probing questions including how and why medieval people communicated and connected with one another across boundaries both geographical and imaginative "The" Athenaeum, 1853

Knots, Or the Violence of Desire in Renaissance Florence Emanuele Lugli, 2023-03-07 This book is about hair writes Emanuele Lugli in the first sentence of this innovative cultural history of hair as seen through the lens of Lorenzo il Magnifico s Florence Lugli reflects on the ways writers and artists naturalized religious prejudices circumscribed social practices and propagated gender and class subjugation through alluring works of art in medical and political writings and in poetry What he asks may ve compelled Sandro Botticelli for example or the young Leonardo da Vinci and dozens of their contemporaries to obsess about hair Why take such care in depicting the braids knots and textures in their portraits of women specifically Lugli dives deeply into the cultural production of notions about hair in this period of Florentine history the way artists poets natural philosophers doctors politicians and theologians thought about it and how they depicted it in their art and writings From this varied archive Lugli gathers rewarding insights from practices and beliefs across the disciplines and genres at a crucial time when Renaissance humanists were attempting to define what it meant to live and be human Lugli recuperates overlooked perceptions of hair at the very moment when hair came to be identified as a potential vector for liberating culture and he corrects a centuries old prejudice that sees hair as a trivial subject as a mere female occupation kept on the margins of relevance relegated to passing fashion or the decorative As Lugli shows such oversight is anachronistic a product of modern biases and he corrects this by elucidating hundreds of fifteenth century sources that engage with hair as a fundamental element in the definition of genders morals and the laws of nature and the exercise of power It is a book that will surprise and delight a wide audience of scholars and anyone interested in the hidden systemic creative power that relied on something as unsuspected as hair to coerce people into thinking and behaving according to a code of conduct
