What Every Person Should Know about War Chris Hedges, 2003-06-01 Acclaimed New York Times journalist and author Chris Hedges offers a critical and fascinating lesson in the dangerous realities of our age a stark look at the effects of war on combatants Utterly lacking in rhetoric or dogma this manual relies instead on bare fact frank description and a spare question and answer format Hedges allows U S military documentation of the brutalizing physical and psychological consequences of combat to speak for itself Hedges poses dozens of questions that young soldiers might ask about combat and then answers them by quoting from medical and psychological studies What are my chances of being wounded or killed if we go to war What does it feel like to get shot What do artillery shells do to you What is the most painful way to get wounded Will I be afraid What could happen to me in a nuclear attack What does it feel like to kill someone Can I withstand torture What are the long term consequences of combat stress What will happen to my body after I die This profound and devastating portrayal of the horrors to which we subject our armed forces stands as a ringing indictment of the glorification of war and the concealment of its barbarity

Current History ,1929 The Aesthetic Sense of Life Bruce Fleming,2008 The Aesthetic Sense of Life is a fast moving book about how to see the world and get value from living every day with the everyday Do the infinite number of sensations we re surrounded with every day have intrinsic value If not what gives them value Who appreciates the sunrise if we don t Is it enough for just us to appreciate it Or do we have to share it The Aesthetic Sense of Life considers and answers to questions such as these in clear readable prose offering a way of looking at life that makes clear its value and its meaning The aesthetic sense of life is neither the viewpoint of the saints for whom the sensations of the world are mere murmuring and illusion nor the viewpoint of those completely fulfilled by their things their gadgets the particulars of their own lives Most of us fall in the middle between these two extremes we appreciate say a good cup of coffee a power tool a new set of towels or a juicy steak but don't think the answer to the riddle of existence is to be found in any of these We appreciate them without thinking them sufficient What's missing from them What's missing is this a sense that they can give meaning to life The Aesthetic Sense of Life proposes that meaning is found not in these particulars but in consciousness of the patterns they form The feel of our towels or the taste of our coffee is just for us Others have their own sensations so they don't need ours What we can share with other people and thus use to re-establish the bonds of human warmth are the patterns made by these particulars something others can appreciate as well Awareness of these patterns constitutes the aesthetic sense of life which gives richness and meaning to the everyday
