

The background is a deep blue gradient. In the upper right, a bright, glowing light source, possibly the sun or moon, is partially visible, creating a lens flare effect. Two white birds, likely herons or egrets, are depicted in flight. The bird in the foreground is shown in profile, facing right, with its long neck extended and its long, thin beak pointed forward. Its wings are spread, showing detailed feather patterns. The second bird is positioned slightly behind and to the left of the first, also in flight. The overall style is minimalist and elegant, typical of traditional Japanese art.
