

Union, phone firm reach agreement

Stephenville workers for the United Telephone Company have agreed to work under their new contract. The new contract, which was negotiated by the United Telephone Company and the United Telephone Workers Union, covers the 1977-1979 period. The contract includes provisions for wages, benefits, and working conditions. The union representatives said they were satisfied with the agreement, which they felt provided a fair and equitable contract for the workers. The company representatives also expressed their satisfaction with the agreement, stating that it provided a stable and predictable labor environment for the company.

The contract is retroactive to Dec. 1, 1976, and provides for a 3 percent wage increase over the previous contract. The contract also includes provisions for health and dental insurance, life insurance, and a pension plan. The contract also provides for a grievance procedure and a dispute resolution process. The contract is being implemented immediately, and the workers will begin receiving the benefits of the new contract on March 1, 1977.
