Welcome Address For A Womans Conference:

The World's Congress of Representative Women May Wright Sewall, 1894 The Rise of Women's Transnational Activism Marie Sandell, 2015-01-26 What characterised women's international co-operation in the interwar period? How did female activists from different countries and continents relate to one another? Marie Sandell here explores the changing experiences of women involved in the major international women's organisations including the International Council of Women, International Alliance of Women, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the International Federation of University Women, as well as the changing compositions and aims of the organisations themselves. Moving beyond an Anglo-American focus, Sandell analyses what the term international sisterhood meant in this broader context, which for the first time included women from the beyond the Western world. Focusing on shifting identities, this book investigates how notions of sisterhood were played out and contested during the interwar period and will be invaluable reading for scholars of women's history and twentieth-century world history.

The World's Congress of Representative Women, 1894 Maritime Women: Global Leadership Momoko Kitada, Erin Williams, Lisa Loloma Froholdt, 2015-02-05 This exciting new WMU book series volume features the first attempt to include detailed experiences of women in the maritime sector at a global level. It highlights the achievement of women in the maritime sector, in particular women's leadership and service to the sustainable development of the maritime industry. The volume contains contemporary studies on maritime women and follows an interdisciplinary approach. It offers an overview of women's integration into the maritime sector since the late 1980s, as well as benchmarking its impact on various levels such as policy, employment, education, leadership and sustainability. Even 20 years after the Beijing Declaration, gender-related challenges at work still remain in the maritime sector, for example lack of gender policy, difficulty in work-life balance, access to education and leadership opportunities. The book addresses a series of recommendations that may further help the integration of women into the maritime sector.

The Indian Quarterly Register, 1927 A Social History of Women in Ireland, 1870-1970 Rosemary Cullen Owens, 2005-10-25 A Social History of Women in Ireland is an important and overdue book that explores the role and status of women in Ireland from 1870 until 1970, looking at politics, sociology, marriage patterns, religion, education and work among other topics. It provides a vital missing piece in the jigsaw of modern Irish history. Using a combination of primary research and published works, A Social History of Women in Ireland explores the role and status of women in Ireland. It examines lifestyle options available to women during this period, as well as providing an overview of the forces working for change within Irish society. In bringing together a wide-ranging portfolio of material, A Social History of Women in Ireland 1870-1970 fills an important gap in the literature of the period by focusing on the experiences of Irish women, a group so often overlooked in histories of revolutionary men and prominent politicians. Crucial to a determination of the status of women throughout this period is an examination of the choices available regarding work, marriage and emigration. Rosemary Cullen

Owens stresses at all times the importance of class and land ownership as key determinants for women's lives. A decrease in home industries allied to increasing mechanisation on the farm resulted in a contraction of labour opportunities for rural women. With the establishment of an independent farming class the distinguishing criteria for status in rural Ireland became ownership of land in which single minded patriarchal figures dominated. In this context the position of women declined and a society evolved with a high pattern of late age marriages, large numbers of unwed sons and daughters and an accepted pattern of emigration. In the cities and towns the condition of lower working class women was especially distressing for most of the period with particular problems regarding housing, health and sanitation. Through the work of campaigning activists equal educational and political rights were eventually attained. From the early 1900s there was some expansion in female employment in shops, offices and industry but domestic service remained a high source of employment. For middle class women employment opportunities were limited and usually disappeared on marriage. The civil service a major employer in an economy that was generally un dynamic and stagnant operated a bar on married women for much of the period. Rosemary Cullen Owens not merely traces these injustices but also the campaigns fought to right them. She locates these struggles in the wider social context in which they took place. This important book restores balance to the narrative of modern Irish history changing the focus from key male political figures to society at large by unveiling the often forgotten story of the country's women over a tumultuous century of change. In doing so Rosemary Cullen Owens enriches our understanding of Irish history from 1870 to 1970.

The Railway Maintenance of Way Employes Journal, 1922 Among Women across Worlds Suzy Kim, 2023-02-15 In Among Women across Worlds Suzy Kim explores the transnational connections between North Korean women and the global women's movement. Asian women especially communists are often depicted as victims of a patriarchal state. Kim challenges this view through extensive archival research revealing that North Korean women asserted themselves from the late 1940s to 1975 before the Korean War began and up to the UN's International Women's Year. Kim centers on North Korea and the East to present a new genealogy of the global women's movement. Women of the Korean Democratic Women's Union (KDWU) part of the global left women's movement led by the Women's International Democratic Federation (WIDF) argued that family and domestic issues should be central to both national and international debates They highlighted the connections between race nationality sex and class in systems of exploitation Their intersectional program proclaimed no peace without justice the personal is the political and women s rights are human rights long before Western activists adopted these ideas Among Women across Worlds uncovers movements and ideas foundational to today s era Women, Work and Computerization
