abstract The post 1980 generation of Chinese or China's Generation Y can be characterized by a number of factors One of the most significant factors that characterizes China's post 1980 generation that differs from previous generations is the strong materialistic attitude that has become apparent One such example as outlined by Yan 2006 pg 255 is the dramatic embrace of McDonald's in China This embrace of McDonald's and the slogan I'm lovin' it or jiu xihuan resonates this life aspiration to achieve instant individual gratification in terms of a pleasurable and comfortable material life This attitude is in opposition to China's former generations who embraced a more collective mindset and had less desire for material gain In contrast China's new generation are more comparable to American youth as having an individualistic and fun seeking behavior that goes beyond social norms However where this differs is where Chinese and American youth perform such acts While Americans may be more outwardly public about their behavior the Chinese appear to place more emphasis on personal consumption

Furthermore as Yan 2006 pg 256 describes this new generation also have ambitions in the field of business to build wealth in order to acquire more material wealth In contrast under Chairman Mao former generations were more concerned with being provided for through the communist system Part of this reason is because of China s new economic policies where advancing financially is more possible than ever and this new generation is responsible for fulfilling the dreams of their parents and to provide for them as they grow old Youth Culture in Chinese Language Film Xuelin Zhou,2016-08-05 This book explores the vigorous film cultures of mainland China Taiwan and Hong Kong from the perspective of youth culture The book relates this important topic to the wider social cultural and institutional context and discusses the relationship between the films and the changes that today are transforming each society Among the areas explored are the differences between the three film industries their creation of new types of screen hero and heroine and their conflicts with traditional Chinese attitudes such as respect for age The many films discussed provide fresh perspectives on the ways in which young people are coping with gender sexuality class coming of age the pressures of education and major social shifts such as rural to urban migration They show young adults in each society striving to construct new value systems for a complex rapidly changing environment
