Hayes, James Mark Shields, 2002 This book provides a series of thematically arranged articles written by contemporary scholars of Buddhism throughout North America Teaching Ritual Catherine Bell, 2007-05-11 There is a great deal of interest in bringing a better appreciation of ritual into religious studies classes but many teachers are uncertain how to go about doing this Religious studies faculty know how to teach texts but they are often unprepared to teach something for which the meaning lies in the doing How much doing should a class do How does the teacher talk about religious concepts that exist in practical relationships not textual descriptions These practical issues also give rise to theoretical questions Giving more attention to ritual effectively suggests a reinterpretation of religion itselfless focused on what people have thought and written and more focused on how they order their universe Much of the useful analysis of ritual derives from anthropological and sociological premises which are often foreign to religious studies faculty and are seen by some as theologically problematic This is the first resource to address the issues specific to teaching this subject A stellar cast of contributors who teach ritual in a wide variety of courses and settings explain what has worked for them in the classroom what hasn't and what they've learned from experience Their voices range from personal to formal and their topics from Japanese theatre to using field trips The result is a thoughtful guide for teachers who are new to the subject as well as experienced ones looking for fresh angles and approaches

Widely recognized as one of the West Coast's most important and critically acclaimed practitioners of conceptual and installation art David Ireland born 1930 has taken the concept of art itself as one of his subjects A self-described post-discipline artist guided by Zen thought and postmodern aesthetics Ireland moves fluidly from making small drawings to creating sculptures as large as houses Freely incorporating anything within his conceptual or physical reach dirt concrete wire and other everyday materials his work is subtle puzzling and witty and consistently challenges traditional definitions of art In this book accompanying the first full scale retrospective of Ireland's work curator and author Karen Tsujimoto provides an insightful overview of more than thirty years of the artist's accomplishments from his drawings sculptures and site specific installations to his remarkable series of architectural transformations including his well known house at 500 Capp Street in San Francisco Chronicling Ireland's circuitous route to his calling Tsujimoto explores how key life experiences have influenced his artistic perspective from his early art student days through his years as an African importer and safari guide to his long standing interest in Eastern and particularly Zen philosophy and his deep connections with the San Francisco Bay Area conceptual art community An illuminating essay by art historian and curator Jennifer R Gross also considers Ireland's art in terms of historical materialism assessing his use of neglected materials and artifacts as a process of cultural preservation
