Neural Implementations of Expertise Merim Bilalić, Robert Langner, Guillermo Campitelli, Luca Turella, Wolfgang Grodd, 2015-12-18 When we think about expertise we usually consider people who master tasks at a level not reachable by most other people Although we rarely realise it however most humans are experts in many aspects of everyday life This expertise enables us to find our way through a complex environment that is our life For instance we can instantly recognise multiple objects and relations between them to form a meaningful unit such as an office Thus research on expertise is not only important to investigate the cognitive and neural processes within an elite group but it is also a powerful tool to understand how everyone can acquire complex skills The goal of this Research Topic is to shed further light on the common and distinct neural mechanisms that implement various kinds of expertise We broadly define expertise as skill in any perceptual cognitive social or motor domain with the common core being optimised information processing due to knowledge acquired from repeated experiences Thus we are interested in the full range of mental processes modulated or modified by expertise from simple object or pattern recognition to complex decision making or problem solving in a particular domain These domains can range from everyday or occupational expertise to sports and rather artificial domains such as board games In all cases the aim should be to elucidate how the brain implements these sometimes incredible feats We are particularly interested in connecting cognitive theories about expertise and expertise related performance differences with models and data on the neural implementation of expertise We welcome original research contributions using the full range of behavioural neuroscience methods as well as theoretical methodological or historical reviews and opinion papers focusing on any of the above mentioned aspects

Latinjak,Antonis Hatzigeorgiadis,2020-03-10 Athletes are naturally exposed to significant psychological challenges in sports but do not wait helplessly for the assistance of sports psychologists or trainers Instead they practise one form or another of self regulation Self talk in Sport explores one such self regulatory strategy self talk the inner voice that accompanies every human being throughout their lives Over time research has revealed many secrets of self talk in sport though many others remain unveiled This book offers you the opportunity to discover the multiple identities of our self talk how the inner coach serves as a rational counterpart to the irrational self and what we need to do to develop our inner voice to reach its maximum self regulatory potential There is a general need for concrete interventions in sport exercise and performance psychology In addition the autonomous functioning of people is a central aim of psychological interventions that align with positive psychology and focus on people's strengths rather than weaknesses. In this volume, researchers and applied practitioners are shown how they can use self-talk interventions to strengthen people's rational self-regulation in order to deal with a variety of situations that apply to both sport and other exercise and performance contexts. Since self-talk is a tangible result of cognitive processes and inner experiences that researchers and applied practitioners can barely access, self-talk in sport is a tool for sports psychologists to understand and interact with hidden parts within athletes that have a major impact on sport and exercise experiences and performance. A book demonstrating the diverse, both rational and irrational, identities of self-talk as well as specific interventions to change the inner dialogue of athletes is a fundamental piece in the education of sport scientists.

Golf Science Mark F. Smith, 2013-06-07. An enlightening illustrated exploration of the scientific factors that determine success or failure on the golf course. The New York Times: What happens in the brain during the pre-shot routine? Does head movement hinder swing performance? Will I hit the ball farther with a longer driver? Why do I lose distance into the wind? What can I learn from watching my ball in flight? How should practice be structured? What are the key stats in golf that I need to know? Golf is perhaps the most complicated simple game ever invented. Legends like Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods make the sport look easy, but anyone who has ever picked up a club knows how truly frustrating golf can be. The success of each shot depends on a diverse range of factors: from the club you choose and the speed with which you swing it to your mood, the weather, and even the type and cut of the grass. Science plays a crucial role in most, if not all, of these factors, and in Golf Science, sports science expert Mark F. Smith investigates the cutting-edge scientific wonders that take the ball from tee to hole, addressing facets from equipment to environment to technology to mind and body with the aid of explanatory diagrams and illustrations.
