Jiyu-kennett, 2016-04-25 Cover Half Title Title Page Copyright Page Half Title Original Title Page Original Copyright Page Dedication Table of Contents Preface Introduction Book 1 The Layman Book 2 The Trainee Book 3 The Parish Priest Book 4 The Eternal Bo Tree Annotations Glossary Questions and Answers About the Author About the Order of Buddhist Contemplatives About the Monasteries of the Order The Ceasing of Notions Bodhidharma, 2012 The texts from the Dunhuang Caves discovered in the mid twentieth century are the Zen equivalent of the Dead Sea Scrolls early texts previously unknown for centuries

Ceasing of Notions is one such text. The text takes a unique form as a dialogue or series of questions and answers between two imaginary figures, Master Nyuri and his disciple Emmon, in which the disciple boldly and tenaciously asks follow-up questions. And these questions prove to be the reader's very own. Morinaga makes this brilliant and pithy text even more accessible to readers who like the student in the dialogue have many questions to ask about their own search for the Way of the Buddha and their possible attainment of enlightenment. This volume also includes a generous selection from Morinaga's autobiography. In this very personal, sometimes humorous and ironical reflection, Morinaga Roshi explains why and how, as a young man full of doubt and uncertainty, he chose to devote himself to the Zen monastic practice. In that practice, he did not find immediate enlightenment but, through long hours of meditation, self-inquiry, and the guidance and stimulus of his teacher, Zuigan Roshi, he came to see that he might, after all, let cease his delusive thinking and awaken to Truth.

The Zen Life 禅の生涯, 1972 Living and Dying in Zen Arthur Braverman, 2003-03-01

Living and Dying in Zen combines the life stories and teaching of five teachers: Kodo Sawaki, Sodo Yokoyama, Kozan Kato, Motoko Ikebe, and Uchiyama, associated with Antaiji monastery, and the story of Braverman and other Western students coming to grips with Zen, Japanese culture, and themselves. The deification of Zen teachers by their followers has been a problematic issue in American Zen; this book provides a healthy antidote, presenting four men and one woman who have lived and died in Zen within the rich context of their personal lives and their culture, so that we can fully understand what makes a Zen master in Japan.

Keep Me in Your Heart a While Dosho Port, 2008-01-10

After my death, I will come back and haunt over you, checking on your practice. Dainin Katagiri Roshi, one of the greatest pioneers of Zen in America, said this frequently, teasing Dosho Port and his fellow students. For Dosho, Katagiri Roshi's haunting still includes borrowing a phrase from Warren Zevon, "keeping him in my heart a while," continuing the intimate exploration of the indelible imprint that a Zen teacher leaves on a student's heart. Katagiri's teaching was at once powerful, gentle, and sometimes almost even casual. For Dosho, some of the richest teachings came in these simple, casual moments during everyday interactions. The structure of this book is built around a series of such vivid, truth-happening places evocative of the ancient koans of the Zen tradition, touching on such topics as the nature and purpose of Zen, the dynamic and working of realization, and, of course, the functioning of the teacher-student relationship.
