Zenia, the Vestal Margaret B. Peeke, 1965 SUPERNATURAL EVENTS ON PLANET ZENIA Karmen Worden, 2022-11-03 Mera Matt and David are sixth graders who won first place in a State Contest of the Arts The prize is a week on Planet Zenia What a surprise when they hear about strange things that happen when Earth kids come to Zenia a talent skill or an unusual interest of a child suddenly becomes enhanced The rangers have screens in the Control Center where they watch students for unexpected behaviors On the swamp boat Mera screams at a hawk that grabs a baby croc by the tail When she yells Drop the croc three times an unusual thing happens the hawk drops the croc She says she mind connected to the hawk but her friends won't believe it unless it happens again with another creature in the jungle Mera loves making and flying her skyplane activated by a remote control and the group use it to fly David's tree house and place it in a tree across the river from the dragon's cave All three of the friends want to be the first to release the dragon from the cave in the mountains Matt doesn't care about danger when he walks in the jungle alone When a panther attacks he jumps to a limb of a tree and finds himself sitting on the top branch Later when they visit the Weejees the native people on the land he rushes to save a child who climbs on Mera's skyplane and smashes it into a tree in the dragons grazing field The village people watch Matt save Leema and they say Must be miracle Who can jump that high When David visits the native people they discover he has communication abilities that will change the people's lives forever Self-fashioning in Margaret Atwood's Fiction Cynthia G. Kuhn, 2005 Disruptive Women of Literature Eleanore Gardner, 2024-07-08 Disruptive Women of Literature Rooting for the Antiheroine critically examines the representation of the literary antiheroine in contemporary Gothic and crime thriller novels and traces her emergence from the deviant women of Greek mythology and Shakespeare to the twenty first century It explores how the antiheroine shifts dependent on genre time period and format demonstrating that she is capable of both challenging and reaffirming problematic ideologies surrounding women power violence sexuality and motherhood Eleanore Gardner argues that the antiheroine is almost always defined by her experience of a patriarchal trauma and must therefore navigate her identity differently and more complexly than her antihero counterpart The author examines a broad range of texts to understand the antiheroine's fluidity her liminal and abject existence and what these suggest about cultural anxieties surrounding transgressive women The Bitch is Back Sarah Appleton Aguiar, 2001 When she wrote The Robber Bride Margaret Atwood created a really villainous villain who happened to be a woman partly in reaction to the fact that in Western literature the most meaty wicked and therefore interesting parts always seemed to go to male characters Aguiar English Murray State U cites the beacon shone by Atwood in introducing her study which discusses the dawning in contemporary literature of the season of the bitch a re evaluation and reclaiming of female toughness thorniness and just plain badness in which women characters are also portrayed as more complete possessed of motivations and strongly individual Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR The Political in

Margaret Atwood's Fiction Theodore F. Sheckels, 2016-02-24 Suggesting that politics and power are at the center of Margaret Atwood's fiction Theodore F. Sheckels examines Atwood's novels from The Edible Woman to The Year of the Flood. Whether her treatment is explicit as in Bodily Harm and The Handmaid's Tale or by means of an exploration of interiority as in Cat's Eye and The Robber Bride, Atwood's persistent concern is with how the empowered act towards those who are constrained within the political, economic and social institutions that facilitate power dynamics. Sheckels identifies an increasing sophistication in Atwood's exposition of power over time that is revealed in the later novels' engagement with social class, postcolonialism and a globalism that merges science and commerce as issues relevant to politics and power. Acknowledging that Atwood is not a political theorist but a novelist, Sheckels does not suggest that her work should be viewed as political commentary but rather as a creative treatment of the laudable but ultimately only partially successful ways in which women and other groups resist the constraints placed on them by institutionalized oppression. Letters from the Afterlife Goldie Morgentaler, 2025-07-29 Extraordinarily little has been written about how women who survived the Holocaust dealt with life after the war with the trauma of their immediate pasts and with the debilitating sense of alienation they felt in a changed world. Letters from the Afterlife chronicles the experiences of two female Holocaust survivors as they adjusted to life in their adopted countries of Canada and Sweden where they knew neither the language nor the culture. Childhood friends in Poland, Chava Rosenfarb and Zenia Larsson lived through the Lodz Ghetto and the death camps together, parting soon after their liberation from Bergen-Belsen. For the next fifty years they continued their friendship through letters written in Polish, their only shared language. Despite their continuing traumas and insecurities, Rosenfarb and Larsson went on to become distinguished novelists in their respective languages, Yiddish and Swedish. In 1972, Larsson published her own side of the correspondence, translated into Swedish, which caused a temporary rift in their enduring friendship. Letters from the Afterlife, with evocative translations by Krzysztof Majer and Sylvia S. Derlind, makes these letters available to an English readership. Rosenfarb's daughter, Goldie Morgentaler, provides an introduction that establishes the importance of the correspondence from both cultural and historical perspectives and an epilogue that continues Rosenfarb and Larsson's story after their written exchange was abruptly but temporarily suspended in 1971. Zenia's Way Abraham Polonsky, 1980

This volume of critical essays analyzes recent works by contemporary women writers whose characters

midlife and later life changes are mapped in their narratives Rather than focusing on the painful losses undergone by women of a certain age recent narratives explore a new kind of adventure of aging one that is spiritual in nature enabling new ways of being and becoming but open ended and capable of great variation in practice In particular these journeys of the spirit focus on the retrospective movement undergone by a midlife or older woman as she is led by inner or outer forces to assess where she has come from and decipher a shape or pattern to her journey These journeys do not leave the body behind as they map new spiritual territory Rather they honor spirit s embrace of the natural world and relationships as well as its aspirations for evolving development and eternal existence The essays in Adventures of the Spirit employ a wide variety of critical lenses to chart these adventures including archetypal Sufi post colonial and feminist analysis archival research aboriginal life writing and trauma theory These studies bring a new understanding to women s adventure of age in both literary texts and in life
