

UNINTENTIONAL CONSENT VIOLATION PLAN

170+ PAGES

Next steps with play. This might be something like "this sort of play is how we move from exclusive to inclusive negotiation," "we take a week off of play again," or "we don't change a thing, we just go forward with new rules." It is important to discuss in advance because after trauma, some may react and be likely to acquiesce to others' desires over their own, or a situation where they back off in a way that makes a partner feel they're no longer in control. With a plan, there's no questioning if decisions are personal in a punitive way.

What will your next steps be with play?

Finally, think about timelines. You might want to know this happened as soon as was needed with memory still fresh. Maybe on a day without physical touch, or a day or two where things have like debrief conversations and how they feel.

It's important to wait before ending a partnership. Of course, they should wait away—but some may like a day or two before making their choice.

What should you keep in mind?

UNINTENTIONAL CONSENT VIOLATION PLAN

Though it may be hard to predict, your first step is to consider how you might respond after trauma and determine what systems should be in place to meet your needs. If you've had trauma responses before, you might have some idea of what you struggle with. If not, use your best judgment. Some examples include:

- Knowing one partner's response is going to involve a much lower energy for a while and deciding the other partner would take on their household tasks.
- Knowing that taking meds can get lost in the shuffle and giving a partner the information needed to check in and remind or confirm this is happening.
- Knowing that someone needs to withdraw emotionally to feel safe at the same time that the other will need other support and establishing a link-friendly support system who will not shame them or need explanations.

The more specific, the better. Saying you have a support system is one thing, but knowing exactly the people in your sphere who understand and support your play and being able to refer back to their names when you need will be far more valuable. And don't forget to ask your top(s) for their needs, if partnered. Particularly if you couldn't meet them in these moments, they need a plan too.

What might you need?

What specific ways can you make that happen?
