Tibetan Buddhists in the Making of Modern China. By GRAY TUTTLE.
New York: Columbia University Press, 2005. xviii, 337 pp. $45.00 (cloth).

The popularity of Tibetan Buddhism has been well established in the West for some time. Less recognized, perhaps, is the growing interest in Tibetan Buddhism not only in China but also throughout Southeast Asia in areas with substantial Chinese populations. Indeed, Tibetan Buddhist ideas have been in circulation in China for some time, at least since the Yuan dynasty. In his timely publication, Gray Tuttle offers a unique and refreshing account of the role of Tibetan Buddhism during the formative years of the modern Chinese nation.

Scholars studying the formation of the Chinese nation-state and nationalism generally stress the secular nature of this project. Alternatives proposed by Chinese intellectuals who were not persuaded by Western secular models are rarely discussed. Tuttle's book presents evidence that there was a sizable group of Chinese intellectuals who sought different options for forging Chinese nationhood and that the source of these alternatives was Buddhism in general and Tibetan Buddhism in particular.

The book's main argument is that Tibetan Buddhism provided an ideological basis for those desiring both the spiritual unity of China and Tibet and their political integration. The downfall of the Qing dynasty saw the virtual collapse of Chinese influence and authority in Tibet. For Chinese nationalists, the recovery of Tibet became part of their nation-building project. In this process, Tuttle argues, Buddhism was understood as both the key to enticing Tibet back into the Chinese fold, as well as a powerful alternative to Westernization.

In the long history of relations between China and Tibet, the question of the role of Buddhism has been a perplexing issue. Past scholars saw Chinese dynastic patronage of Tibetan Buddhism as superficial and utilitarian—indeed, primarily a means of pacifying the turbulent Mongol groups. Lately, there has been a growing recognition of its deep penetration into late imperial Chinese cultural life, with scholars acknowledging that court participation in Tibetan Buddhism may have been more sincere than earlier studies admit. Nevertheless, these studies still imply that during late imperial China, the practice of Tibetan Buddhism was mainly confined to the court and gentry. By contrast, it appears from Tuttle's account that Tibetan Buddhism achieved a considerable degree of penetration at all levels of society during the Republican period, and it also supplied a compelling alternative to Westernization and a shared space for

Tibetan Buddhists In The Making Of Modern China:

Tibetan Buddhists in the Making of Modern China Gray Tuttle, 2005 Gray Tuttle reveals the surprising role Buddhism and Buddhist leaders played in the development of the modern Chinese state and in fostering relations between Tibet and China from the Republican period 1912 1949 to the early years of Communist rule Tuttle offers new insights on the impact of modern ideas of nationalism race and religion in East Asia He draws on previously unexamined archival and governmental materials as well as personal memoirs of Chinese politicians and Buddhist monks and ephemera from religious ceremonies

Tibetan Buddhists in the Making of Modern China Gray Tuttle, 2005-04-26 Over the past century and with varying degrees of success China has tried to integrate Tibet into the modern Chinese nation state In this groundbreaking work Gray Tuttle reveals the surprising role Buddhism and Buddhist leaders played in the development of the modern Chinese state and in fostering relations between Tibet and China from the Republican period 1912 1949 to the early years of Communist rule Beyond exploring interactions between Buddhists and politicians in Tibet and China Tuttle offers new insights on the impact of modern ideas of nationalism race and religion in East Asia After the fall of the Qing dynasty in 1911 the Chinese Nationalists without the traditional religious authority of the Manchu Emperor promoted nationalism and racial unity in an effort to win support among Tibetans Once this failed Chinese politicians appealed to a shared Buddhist heritage This shift in policy reflected the late nineteenth century academic notion of Buddhism as a unified world religion rather than a set of competing and diverse Asian religious practices While Chinese politicians hoped to gain Tibetan loyalty through religion the promotion of a shared Buddhist heritage allowed Chinese Buddhists and Tibetan political and religious leaders to pursue their goals During the 1930s and 1940s Tibetan Buddhist ideas and teachers enjoyed tremendous popularity within a broad spectrum of Chinese society and especially among marginalized Chinese Buddhists Even when relationships between the elite leadership between the two nations broke down religious and cultural connections remained strong After the Communists seized control they continued to exploit this link when exerting control over Tibet by force in the 1950s And despite being an avowedly atheist regime with the exception of the Cultural Revolution the Chinese communist government has continued to recognize and support many elements of Tibetan religious if not political culture Tuttle's study explores the role of Buddhism in the formation of modern China and its relationship to Tibet through the lives of Tibetan and Chinese Buddhists and politicians and by drawing on previously unexamined archival and governmental materials as well as personal memoirs of Chinese politicians and Buddhist monks and ephemera from religious ceremonies Faith and Nation Gray Tuttle, 2002 The Spread of Tibetan Buddhism in China Dan Smyer Yu, 2013-03-01 Focusing on contemporary Tibetan Buddhist revivals in the Tibetan regions of the Sichuan and Qinghai Provinces in China this book explores the intricate entanglements of the Buddhist revivals with cultural identity state ideology and popular imagination of Tibetan Buddhist spirituality in contemporary China In turn the author explores the broader socio cultural implications of such revivals Based on detailed cross regional ethnographic work the book demonstrates that the revival of Tibetan Buddhism in contemporary China is intimately bound with both the affirming and negating forces of globalization modernity and politics of religion indigenous identity reclamation and the market economy The analysis highlights the multidimensionality of Tibetan Buddhism in relation to different religious cultural and political constituencies of China By recognizing the greater contexts of China s politics of religion and of the global status of Tibetan Buddhism this book presents an argument that the revival of Tibetan Buddhism is not an isolated event limited merely to Tibetan regions instead it is a result of the intersection of both local and global transformative changes The book is a useful contribution to students and scholars of Asian religion and Chinese studies

Esoteric Buddhism in China Wei Wu, 2024-03-05 During the Republican period 1912 1949 and after many Chinese Buddhists sought inspiration from non Chinese Buddhist traditions showing a particular interest in esoteric teachings What made these Buddhists dissatisfied with Chinese Buddhism and what did they think other Buddhist traditions could offer Which elements did they choose to follow and which ones did they disregard And how do their experiences recast the wider story of twentieth century pan Asian Buddhist reform movements Based on a wide range of previously unexplored Chinese sources this book explores how esoteric Buddhist traditions have shaped the Chinese religious landscape Wei Wu examines cross cultural religious transmission of ideas from Japanese and Tibetan traditions considering the various esoteric currents within Chinese Buddhist communities and how Chinese individuals and groups engaged with newly translated ideas and practices She argues that Chinese Buddhists assimilation of doctrinal ritual and institutional elements of Tibetan and Japanese esoteric Buddhism was not a simple replication but an active process of creating new meanings Their visions of Buddhism in the modern world as well as early twentieth century discourses of nation building and religious reform shaped the reception of esoteric traditions By analyzing the Chinese interpretation and strategic adaptations of esoteric Buddhism this book sheds new light on the intellectual development ritual performances and institutional formations of Chinese Buddhism in the twentieth century

The Invention of China Bill Hayton, 2020-10-02 A smart take on modern Chinese nationalism Foreign Policy this provocative account shows that China and its 5 000 years of unified history is a national myth created only a century ago with a political agenda that persists to this day China's current leadership lays claim to a 5 000 year old civilization but China as a unified country and people Bill Hayton argues was created far more recently by a small group of intellectuals In this compelling account Hayton shows how China's present day geopolitical problems the fates of Hong Kong Taiwan Tibet Xinjiang and the South China Sea were born in the struggle to create a modern nation state In the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries reformers and revolutionaries adopted foreign ideas to invent a new vision of China By asserting a particular politicized version of the past the government bolstered its claim to a vast territory stretching from the Pacific to Central Asia Ranging across history nationhood language and territory Hayton shows how the Republic's reworking of its past not only helped it to justify its right to rule a century ago but continues to motivate and direct policy today
