The Five Senses Michel Serres, 2016-10-20 Marginalized by the scientific age the lessons of the senses have been overtaken by the dominance of language and the information revolution With The Five Senses Serres traces a topology of human perception writing against the Cartesian tradition and in praise of empiricism he demonstrates repeatedly and lyrically the sterility of systems of knowledge divorced from bodily experience The fragile empirical world long resistant to our attempts to contain and catalog it is disappearing beneath the relentless accumulations of late capitalist society and information technology Data has replaced sensory pleasure we are less interested in the taste of a fine wine than in the description on the bottle's label What are we and what do we really know when we have forgotten that our senses can describe a taste more accurately than language ever could The book won the inaugural Prix Mécénat Essai in 1985 The Revelations edition includes an introduction by Steven Connor

Staying Fijian Rod Ewins, 2009-07-31 Barkcloth or masi is the traditional art form of the women of Vatuvele Island Its manufacture continues to flourish even increase while many other arts are declining despite the fact that most of its functional roles have been usurped by Western cloth and paper This book explores this apparent paradox and concludes that the reasons lie in the ability of its identity functions to buffer the effects of social stress This is so for not only Vatuveleans but all Fijians It is argued that the resultant strong indigenous demand has caused the efflorescence in barkcloth manufacture and use contrary to the common assumption that the tourism market is the savior of art This cultural vigor however has social costs that are explored here and weighed against its benefits Rod Ewins locates a very local activity in both national and global contexts historically sociologically and theoretically
