The Future of Scholarly Publishing Peter Weingart, Niels Taubert, 2017-10-10 The formal scientific communication system is currently undergoing significant change This is due to four developments the digitisation of formal science communication the economisation of academic publishing as profit drives many academic publishers and other providers of information an increase in the self observation of science by means of publication citation and utility based indicators and the medialisation of science as its observation by the mass media intensifies Previously these developments have only been dealt with individually in the literature and by science policy actors The Future of Scholarly Publishing documents the materials and results of an interdisciplinary working group commissioned by the Berlin Brandenburg Academy of Sciences and Humanities BBAW to analyse the future of scholarly publishing and to make recommendations on how to respond to the challenges posed by these developments As per the working groups intention the focus was mainly on the sciences and humanities in Germany However in the course of the work it became clear that the issues discussed by the group are equally relevant for academic publishing in other countries As such this book will contribute to the transfer of ideas and perspectives and allow for mutual learning about the current and future state of scientific publishing in different settings

Scholarly Publishing in the Humanities, 2000-2024 Albert N. Greco, 2024-08-16 This book explores the recent history and future directions of scholarly publishing in the humanities in the United States from a marketing and communications perspective. The study draws on statistical surveys and data from a multitude of sources in order to analyze the major challenges confronting the humanities in higher education as well as the opportunities for print and digital publication since 2000. Chapters cover all types of publishing from university to trade presses, libraries, national programs and self-publishing and focuses on changes in higher education funding, the impact of disruptive technologies such as AI and the importance of global markets in disseminating new research in the humanities. The author explores these trends and other relevant theories, practices and examples to achieve a better understanding of why publishing scholarly books and journals in the humanities is and will remain a critically important yet complicated component of the higher education landscape. The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2009. Library Literature & Information Science, 2008 An index to library and information science literature. The Publishers Weekly, 1874. Handbook of Research on the Global View of Open Access and Scholarly Communications Alemneh, Daniel Gelaw, 2022-04-29 In an information and knowledge society, access to information and knowledge is a basic human right, making equitable and fair access to information and knowledge paramount. Open Access (OA) plays a huge role in addressing inequities as well as broad-based and inclusive scientific progress. On the surface, the number of publications discussing OA issues from various angles are on the rise. However, what is missing is a comprehensive assessment of the extent of OA implementation and a discussion of how to proceed in integrating OA issues from various perspectives. The Handbook of Research on the Global View of Open Access and Scholarly Communications articulates OA concepts and issues while demystifying the state-of-the-art knowledge domain in the areas of OA and scholarly communications from diverse perspectives as well as implications for the information and knowledge society. Covering topics such as ethics, copyright challenges and open access initiatives, this book is a dynamic resource for publishers, librarians, higher education administrators, policymakers, students and educators of higher education, researchers and academicians. Meeting of Board of Regents University of Michigan.
