French, 1930 The Story of Rolf and the Viking's Bow Allen French, 2013-12 Rolf is the only son of Hiarandi the Unlucky. Most of his father's ill luck springs from the fact that he is compassionate and that his neighbor Einar covets his land and his spacious hall. The wicked Einar manages to get Hiarandi ensnared in legal difficulties and he is sentenced to spend a year within a bow shot of his own hall. Not content, Einar sends his henchmen to trick Hiarandi into venturing beyond this perimeter where he will be fair game for slaughter. Hiarandi is killed, but in the process, young Rolf also kills one of Einar's henchmen. Now Rolf is made an outlaw and is forced to flee from Iceland until his sentence is complete. But Rolf will not be content until he can prove that his father was killed within a bowshot of his home and thus make Einar subject to the law.

The Story of Rolf and the Viking Bow Allen French, 2013-03-01 Rolf is the son of Hiarandi the Unlucky. Hiarandi, at the urging of his wife, does an unforgivable thing: he lights a signal fire on a dangerous point of his land, challenging the accepted custom that places lucrative salvage at a higher value than the saving of life. However, the life that is saved that night causes his own death and the unjust outlawing of his son Rolf. This tale exemplifies the effect of Christ's teachings upon the Icelandic people during their heroic age. The book is set in Iceland in the days when Christianity has come to the island, though the old customs still linger.

They seem a good pair, he answered. It is fitting for thy dignity to have thralls. Then he went away. Frodi asked of Rolf, Did he know us? He knew us well, answered Rolf. What wilt thou do? asked Frodi. I see naught to do, said Rolf. For what he did against my father was done in Iceland, so that I could not bring a suit at law here. Moreover, no thrall can bring a suit in any land. Wilt thou claim kinship with him? Frodi asked. Wilt thou respond? Rolf. No more words were said, but it was seen in their eyes that for their pride's sake they would make no claim on Kiartan Kiartan found that nothing was said in the matter so he stayed there in the place and won the friendship of Ar by gifts and traded with success He ate often at the hall and slept there whenever he would but no word passed between him and those kinsmen nor did they ever look at him Grani was proud that he owned thralls and he commanded them to show what they could do So Rolf shot with the bow and Grani made him his bow bearer But Frodi said he knew little of weapons yet when they gave him a spear he shot it through two shields braced together against posts He asked for work as a smith but Grani made him spear bearer And the youth often walked abroad with those other two attending him Ar was pleased with that show but the thralls smiled grimly to each other Once Kiartan saw that smile and he said to Grani privily Thy thralls smile at thy back and make as if they feel shame Now be careful lest they harm thee sometime when thou art alone with them If I were thee I would set them at the sheep herding or the field work Grani
