Movies are like giant vats

Movies are like giant vats of stew. In order to make a really good stew, you must put a lot of different things in it. For example, vegetable stew has carrots, potatoes, and an occasional broiled steak along with an assortment of other things. Movies have to have a lot of ingredients to make them good as well. There are plenty of great "movie stews" out there but there are distinctly good ones. By this I'm talking about Acin Loydum: The Detective. This movie has all the essential ingredients in it. It has to have some kind of immaturity, a good plot, and distinct characters that you will remember forever.

There is a lot of the immaturity ingredients in this stew. For example, the main character lives in a building that has one thousand steps. He tries to get a drink to go down every step and it stops on the last step. Then he gets back up to try it again. Another example of when he immaturity shows is when he terrorizes an Indian who has to balance on a pole for three days. He does this by shooting poisonous vials of spitballs at him and violently shaking the pole yelling, "Earthquake now!"

Acin Loydum needs a good plot and this one, as mature as it takes the gold. The main character is on a mission to find the sacred bag of two Indian clans. If he doesn't, they will go to war and annihilate each other. Little does he know the person who hired him stole his bag. He ends up getting the bag from him and barely makes it back in time. He arrived just before the two Indian armies were about to clash and run through with the bag hanging at the top of his lungs. "Shout!" The word makes the Indian boy down because it is the name of the sacred bag.

Characters are the main ingredients that make a movie. This character is really weird. He arrives in a formal dinner party and took an appointment of food and arranged it on his face. He had spaghetti in his teeth, cucumbers in his eyes, and baby tomatoes in his nose. Then, when he was being loaded for his mission, he started making finger puppets in front of the projector, and then, using his finger puppets, attacked the people on the stage.

Acin Loydum: The Detective will fill you up and watch it.

Analysis of the Word Choice Trait in "Movies are like giant vats"

We See in the Writing

The essay metaphor is strong. There are plenty of places in the piece where the writer uses original, safe words and phrases that show clarity and skill. The writer uses a lot of words that are not common. Words like "annihilate," "earthquake," and "spitballs" are used to show the writer's skill. Some attention to repetition is needed as well. Score: 4, Refining
