Gendered Voices H.B. Holmarsdottir, V. Nomlomo, A.I. Farag, Z. Desai, 2013-02-11 Internationally there is growing awareness that the target of Education for All by 2015 will not be met unless more strident efforts are made to improve access for marginalized hard to reach children most often girls For almost four decades gender equality in education has been one of the key global concerns and as a result various organizations at national and international levels along with governments have initiated programs focusing on achieving gender equality women s empowerment and improving girls access to education By focusing on access alone i e gender parity we may not understand how education can be used to achieve empowerment and influence cultural practices that are gender insensitive In this volume we attempt to call into question the content of gender equality as simple parity and in doing so we reflect upon the following questions Do the global macro discourses on gender equality in education lead to a focus on numbers only or to more profound sustainable changes at the national meso level and the school micro level To what extent have national policies been adjusted to reflect the global discourses on gender equality Are schools classrooms micro expected to adjust to these global discourses and if so in what ways has this happened What are the challenges of providing access to good quality education for girls in both countries Is there a dichotomy between the schools classrooms on the one hand and the community on the other in terms of gender equality equity To what extent is gender equality equity imposed upon schools and communities and does it take into account the cultural practices in traditional communities Key words Gender equality education Global vs local concerns 3 selling points The volume highlights that although research has shown how global educational policies homogenize national educational policies and are therefore playing what can be termed a neo colonial role in identifying pivotal themes and topics in education across the world such as gender equality literacy and quality education in local contexts they are often steeped in a Western logic which is not always culturally relevant or conducive Making global recommendations for education across cultures and places is thus not always unproblematic The volume highlights that a push for girls schooling must navigate wisely in sensitive terrain where complex contextual aspects must be understood and taken into account Girls attendance and retention in school are important first steps in the struggle for epistemic access but must be followed by serious deliberations about what kind of school and what kind of knowledge in the schools is appropriate and about equality and equity The volume attempts to understand how the global gender goals in education affect both local policies and local practice and in doing so it attempts to question the simple focus on access only

Dworkin, 2015-12-04 Presents a unique approach to HIV prevention at the intersection of sociological and public health research Although the first AIDS cases were attributed to men having sex with men over 70% of HIV infections worldwide are now estimated to occur through sex between women and men In Men at Risk Shari L Dworkin argues that the centrality of heterosexual relationship dynamics to the transmission of HIV means that both women and men need to be taken into account in gender specific HIV AIDS prevention interventions She looks at the costs of masculinity that shape men s HIV risks such as their initiation of sex and their increased status from sex with multiple partners Engaging with the common paradigm in HIV research that portrays only women and not heterosexually active men as being vulnerable to HIV Dworkin examines the gaps in public health knowledge that result in substandard treatment for HIV transmission and infection among heterosexual men both domestically and globally She examines a vast array of structural factors that shape men s HIV transmission risks and also focuses on a relatively new category of global health programs with men known as gender transformative that seeks to move men in the direction of gender equality in the name of improved health Dworkin makes suggestions for the next generation of gender transformative health interventions by calling for masculinities based and structurally driven HIV prevention programming Thoroughly researched and theoretically grounded Men at Risk presents a unique approach to HIV prevention at the intersection of sociological and public health research
