An Ethics of Reading Sandra Cox,2016-01-14 An Ethics of Reading considers how writers of contemporary American fiction represent collective identities by producing literature that bears witness to cultural traumas With chapters focused on important American novelists including Toni Morrison Alice Walker Sherman Alexie Edwidge Danticat and Junot Diaz the book works to situate novels that explore ethnic identity in conversation with one another From those intertextual conversations it draws conclusions about how fiction functions as testimony and the ways that readers might work to ethically respond to the testimonial features of the prose The book's investigations of distinct cultural traumas are broad ranging from analyses of African American novels that treat slavery to Native American novels that portray land and child theft to Dominican and Haitian American accounts of US backed hegemony in the Caribbean diaspora Ultimately the central claim of the book that some works of contemporary American fiction function both didactically and aesthetically as cultural markers around which ethnic identities might be negotiated by writers and readers becomes a kind of call to action for literary studies in the early 21st century encouraging an ideological and pragmatic shift in how contemporary literature is read analysed and discussed By suggesting specific strategies for considering ethnicity in a radically diasporic American context the book calls for critical engagement that is also concerned with the ethics of interpretive praxis which it suggests might be a mechanism for building coalitions for social justice within and through literature

Mixed Race Literature Jonathan Brennan, 2002 This collection presents the first scholarly attempt to map the rapidly emerging field of mixed race literature defined as texts written by authors who represent multiple cultural and literary traditions It also situates these literatures in relation to contemporary fields of literary inquiry

Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl Harriet A. Native Removal Writing Sabine N. Meyer, 2022-01-27 During the Standing Rock Sioux protest against the Dakota Access Pipeline an activist observed Forced removal isn't just in the history books Sabine N Meyer concurs noting the prominence of Indian Removal the nineteenth century policy of expelling Native peoples from their land in Native American aesthetic and political praxis across the centuries Removal has functioned both as a specific set of historical events and a synecdoche for settler colonial dispossession of Indigenous communities across hemispheres and generations It has generated a plethora of Native American writings that negotiate forms of belonging the identities of Native collectives their proprietary relationships and their most intimate relations among one another By analyzing these writings in light of domestic settler colonial international and tribal law Meyer reveals their coherence as a distinct genre of Native literature that has played a significant role in negotiating Indigenous identity Critically engaging with Native Removal writings across the centuries Meyer's work shows how these texts need to be viewed as articulations of Native identity that respond to immediate political concerns and that take up the question of how Native peoples can define and assert their own social cultural and legal political forms of living being and belonging within the settler colonial order Placing novels in conversation with nonfiction writings Native Removal Writing ranges from texts produced in response to the legal and political struggle over Cherokee Removal in the late 1820s and 1830s to works written by African Native writers dealing with the freedmen disenrollment crisis to contemporary speculative fiction that links the appropriation of Native intangible property culture with the earlier dispossession of their real property land In close contextualized readings of John Rollin Ridge John Milton Oskison Robert J Conley Diane Glancy Sharon Ewell Foster Zelda Lockhart and Gerald Vizenor as well as politicians and scholars such as John Ross Elias Boudinot and Rachel Caroline Eaton Meyer identifies the links these writers create between historical past narrated present and political future Native Removal Writing thus testifies to both the ongoing power of Native Removal writing and its significance as a critical practice of resistance

The New Slave Narrative Laura T. Murphy, 2019-09-17 A century and a half after the abolition of slavery in the United States survivors of contemporary forms of enslavement from around the world have revived a powerful tool of the abolitionist movement first person narratives of slavery and freedom Just as Frederick Douglass Harriet Jacobs and others used autobiographical testimonies in the fight to eradicate slavery today's new slave narrators play a crucial role in shaping an antislavery agenda Their writings unveil the systemic underpinnings of global slavery while critiquing the precarity of their hard fought freedom At the same time the demands of antislavery organizations religious groups and book publishers circumscribe the voices of the enslaved coopting their narratives in support of alternative agendas In this pathbreaking interdisciplinary study Laura T Murphy argues that the slave narrative has reemerged as a twenty first century genre that has gained new currency in the context of the memoir boom post 9 11 anti Islamic sentiment and conservative family values politics She analyzes a diverse range of dozens of book length accounts of modern slavery from Africa Asia the United States the United Kingdom and Europe examining the narrative strategies that survivors of slavery employ to make their experiences legible and to promote a reinvigorated antislavery agenda By putting these stories into conversation with one another The New Slave Narrative reveals an emergent survivor centered counterdiscourse of collaboration and systemic change that offers an urgent critique of the systems that maintain contemporary slavery as well as of the human rights industry and the antislavery movement
