Street Ballads in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Ireland, and North America David Atkinson, Steve Roud, 2016-04-01 In recent years the assumption that traditional songs originated from a primarily oral tradition has been challenged by research into street literature that is the cheap printed broadsides and chapbooks that poured from the presses of jobbing printers from the late sixteenth century until the beginning of the twentieth Not only are some traditional singers known to have learned songs from printed sources but most of the songs were composed by professional writers and reached the populace in printed form Street Ballads in Nineteenth Century Britain Ireland and North America engages with the long running debate over the origin of traditional songs by examining street literature's interaction with and influence on oral traditions Representations of Childhood Death NA NA, 2016-04-30 Recent events such as the massacres in Dunblane and Arkansas the deaths of children in terrorist attacks civil wars and famines children born with AIDS and the many abductions and murders of children including some by children have placed childhood death firmly in the public consciousness But how do we understand what it means for a child to die This book examines the way the deaths of children have been dealt with at different times and in different media Each contributor has focused on a different way of representing the deaths of children from superstitions about malign child ghosts through mothers diaries to horror fiction and more Peggy Seeger Jean R.
