Travels in the Genetically Modified Zone Mark L. Winston, Professor and Fellow at the Morris J Wosk Center for Dialogue Department of Biological Sciences and Academic Director and Fellow at the Center for Dialogue Mark L Winston, 2002 With genetically modified crops we have entered uncharted territory where visions of the triumph of biotechnology in agriculture vie with dire views of medical and environmental disaster For two years Mark L Winston traveled this fraught territory at home and abroad listening to farmers industry spokespeople regulators and researchers canvassing high security laboratories environmentalist enclaves and cyberspace making a thorough survey of the facts opinions and practices deployed by opponents and proponents of transgenic crops Through his sympathetic portrayal of the passions on all sides Winston brings a clear unbiased perspective to this bewildering landscape Traveling with Winston we see the excitement and curiosity that pervade laboratories developing genetically modified crops as well as the panic and outrage among dedicated opponents of agricultural biotechnology the desperation of conventional farmers as they look to science for solutions to the problems driving them from their farms as well as the deeply held values of organic farmers who dread the incursion of genetically modified crops into their expanding enterprise And Winston shows us these contrasting attitudes transcend national borders with troubling counterparts and consequences in the developing world As he seeks a middle ground where concerns about genetic engineering can be rationally discussed and resolved Winston gives us at long last a full and balanced view of the forces at play in the chaotic debate over agricultural biotechnology

Healy,Debora L. VanNijnatten,Marcela López-Vallejo,2014-01-20 This comprehensive analysis of key issues in North American environmental policy provides an overview of how the US Mexico and Canada differ in their environmental management approaches and capacity levels and how these differences play into cross border cooperation on environmental problems The book offers insights into transboundary cooperation both before and after NAFTA and presents a framework for making environmental interaction more effective in the future The book is organized into two parts The first more general section compares the national contexts for environmental management in each country including economic conditions sociocultural dynamics and political decision making frameworks and shows how these have led to variations in policy approaches and levels of capacity The authors argue that effective environmental governance in North America depends on the ability of transboundary institutions to address and mediate these differences The book s second section illustrates this argument using four case studies of environmental management in North America biodiversity and protected areas air pollution smog greenhouse gas reduction and genetically modified crops The International Politics of Genetically Modified Food R. Falkner,2015-12-11 Genetically modified food is at the heart of a new global conflict over how to govern risky technologies in an era of globalization This timely collection brings together experts from the fields of IR environmental studies trade and law to examine the sources of international friction and to explore the prospects for international co operation Bioethical and Evolutionary Approaches to Medicine and the Law W. different ways in which crime is constructed conceived and controlled International case studies are used to demonstrate how crime and justice are historically and geographically located in terms of the global local context and how processes of criminalisation and punishment are mediated in contemporary societies Crime Local and Global covers the way local events such as prostitution have wider aspects than previously thought Links with people traffickers international organised crime and violence cannot be ignored any longer Each crime or area of activity selected within this text has a global reach and is made ever more possible due to the way globalisation has opened up markets both legitimate and illegitimate The book s approach and scope emphasises that we can no longer view crime as something which occurs within certain jurisdictions at certain times and in particular places For example the chapter on cybercrime highlights the illegal acts that can be perpetrated by second lifers anywhere in the world but are they a crime The Promise of Biotechnology ,2005
