

Treasure Island

by Robert Louis Stevenson - CCSS Reading Comprehension

Jim Hawkins was a young boy who lived at his parents' inn, the Admiral Benbow, near Bristol, England, in the eighteenth century. One day, an old sea captain named Billy Bones died in the inn after being presented with a black spot, an official pirate verdict of guilt or judgment. Jim was allowed to action by the spot and its mechanical, accurate portrait of Billy's death. Mysteriously, Jim and his mother unlocked Billy's sea chest, finding a logbook and map inside. Hearing steps outside, they left with the documents before Billy's pursuers reached the inn.

Jim realized that the contents he had unlocked from the sea chest were valuable, so he took one of the documents he had found to some local acquaintances, Dr. Livesey and Squire Trelawney. Instead, they recognized it as a map for a huge treasure that the infamous pirate Captain Flint had buried on a distant island. Trelawney immediately started planning an expedition. Made in his negotiations to outfit his ship, the Hopewell, Trelawney was tricked into hiring one of Flint's former mates, Long John Silver, and many of Flint's crew. Only the captain, Smollett, was trustworthy. The ship set sail for Treasure Island with nothing amiss, until Jim overheard Silver's plans for mutiny! Jim told the captain about Silver and the rest of the rebellious crew.

Landing at the island, Captain Smollett devised a plan to get most of the mutineers off the ship, allowing them rescue those on shore. On a whim, Jim sneaked into the pirates' boat and went ashore with them. Frightened of the pirates, Jim ran off alone. From a hiding place, he witnessed Silver murder a sailor who refused to join the mutiny. Terrified, Jim fled deeper into the heart of the island, where he encountered a half-crazed man named Ben-Cum. Ben had once served in Flint's crew but was marooned on the island years earlier.

Meanwhile, Smollett and his men had gone ashore and taken shelter in a stockade the pirates have built. Jim returned to the stockade, bringing Ben with him. Silver visited and attempted a negotiation with the captain, but the captain was wary and refused to speak to him. The pirates attacked the stockade the next day, and the captain was wounded. Eager to take action, Jim followed another whom and deserted his mates, sneaking off to hunt for Ben's handmade boat hidden in the woods.

After finding Ben's boat, Jim sailed out to the anchored ship with the intention of cutting it adrift, thereby depriving the pirates of a means of escape. He cut the rope, but he soon realized that his small boat had drifted near the pirates' camp and feared he would be discovered. By chance, the pirates did not spot Jim, and he floated around the island until he caught sight of the ship drifting away. Struggling aboard, he discovered that one of the watchmen, Israel Hands, had killed the other watchman in a drunken fit. Jim took control of the ship, but Silver turned against him. In the fight, Jim was wounded but managed to be rescued.

Jim returned to the stockade but found it occupied by the pirates. Silver took Jim hostage, telling the boy that the captain had given the pirates the treasure map, provisions, and the use of the stockade in exchange for their lives. Jim realized, however, that Silver was having trouble managing his men, who were accusing him of treachery. Silver proposed to Jim that they help each other survive by pretending Jim was a hostage. However, the men presented Silver with a black spot and informed him that he had been deposed as their commander.

In a desperate attempt to gain control of his crew, Silver showed them the treasure map to appease them. Silver got Jim and the men to the treasure site, but they are shocked to find it already excavated and the treasure removed. The men were angered and near mutiny once again. At that moment Dr. Livesey, Ben-Cum, and the others fled on the pirate band, which scattered throughout the island. Jim and Silver fled, and were guided by the others to Ben's cave, where Ben had hidden the treasure, which he had discovered months before.

After spending three days carrying the load to the ship, the men prepared to set sail for home. There was a debate about the fate of the remaining mutineers. Despite the pirates' submissive pleas, they were left marooned on the island. Silver was allowed to join the voyage, but he sneaked off the ship one night with a portion of the treasure and was never heard from again. When everyone returned home, Captain Smollett retired, and Ben became a lodge-keeper and Jim began off treasure hunting forever as he suffered from nightmares about the sea and gold coins.
