Planetary health approaches to understand and control vector-borne diseases Kimberley Fornace,Jan Conn,Maria Anice Mureb,Leonardo Suveges Moreira Chaves,James Logan,2023-12-21 Mosquitoes transmit many of the pathogens that cause zoonotic diseases from wildlife and livestock to people with devastating consequences for public health The factors affecting the ecology and evolution of the transmission dynamics of these mosquito borne pathogens can be revealed using multidisciplinary research approaches This 7th volume of the ECVD series focuses on the ecological factors that determine the transmission dynamics of mosquito borne pathogens naturally circulating between animals of different taxa and their importance for human health The authors revise the current knowledge on the pathogens that affect wildlife including those maintained in captivity as well as the use of cutting edge techniques for the identification of potential vectors of these pathogens In addition this volume explores the role of factors related to global change including changes in landscape use deforestation and urbanization as major drivers of the distribution of mosquito vectors and the dynamics of pathogen transmission Finally updated information on the approaches used to identify and control mosquito borne diseases is presented with a particular focus on those affecting humans In summary this book provides an updated review of the different mosquito borne pathogens affecting animals and their public health relevance

Randomized Control Trials in the Field of Development Florent Bédécarrats, Isabelle Guérin, François Roubaud, 2020-09-17 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Academic and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations In October 2019 Abhijit Banerjee Esther Duflo and Michael Kremer jointly won the 51st Sveriges Riksbank Prize in Economic Sciences in Memory of Alfred Nobel for their experimental approach to alleviating global poverty But what is the exact scope of their experimental method known as randomized control trials RCTs Which sorts of questions are RCTs able to address and which do they fail to answer The first of its kind Randomized Control Trials in the Field of Development: A Critical Perspective provides answers to these questions explaining how RCTs work what they can achieve why they sometimes fail how they can be improved and why other methods are both useful and necessary Bringing together leading specialists in the field from a range of backgrounds and disciplines economics econometrics mathematics statistics political economy socioeconomics anthropology philosophy global health epidemiology and medicine it presents a full and coherent picture of the main strengths and weaknesses of RCTs in the field of development Looking beyond the epistemological political and ethical differences underlying many of the disagreements surrounding RCTs it explores the implementation of RCTs on the ground outside of their ideal theoretical conditions and reveals some unsuspected uses and effects their disruptive potential but also their political uses The contributions uncover the implicit worldview that many RCTs draw on and disseminate and probe the gap between the method's narrow scope and its success while also proposing improvements and alternatives Without disputing the contribution of RCTs to scientific knowledge Randomized Control Trials in the Field of Development warns against the potential dangers of their excessive use arguing that the best use for RCTs is not necessarily that which immediately springs to mind Written in plain language this book offers experts and laypeople alike a unique opportunity to come to an informed and reasoned judgement on RCTs and what they can bring to development

Cumulated Index Medicus, 1995 COVID and Emerging Infectious Diseases William Tolbert, Neelakshi Gohain, 2024-02-13 Over the last two years with the strain of coronavirus having a devastating

effect on the world's healthcare system and triggering a global lockdown one question that has emerged: What or which infectious disease is going to hit us next? Many infectious diseases prevalent in humans and animals are caused by pathogens that once emerged from other animal hosts. In addition to these established or re-emerging infections, new infectious diseases periodically emerge. In extreme cases, they may lead to pandemics as we currently are seeing. The increased urbanization and globalization of the world, with faster connectivity and traveling, has further increased the risk factors for emerging infections. Despite this, enormous progress has been made in the field of infectious disease in the last few decades. The number of deaths and severe infections because of diseases like Malaria, HIV, Ebola, Dengue, Yellow fever virus, YFV, Zika, etc. have been significantly reduced, and diseases like Polio are on the brink of eradication. In particular, the emergence of the devastating SARS-CoV-2 pandemic has revolutionized the field in an unprecedented way. A myriad of vaccine platforms and highly potent therapeutic approaches have been developed by government, industry, academic, and non-governmental organizations. However, the rapid and unparalleled spread of SARS-CoV-2 and its variants and the amount of toll that it has caused to the public health and global economy also underscores the urgent need to develop broadly cross-reactive, rapidly deployable, and scalable therapeutic platforms. Development of these novel therapeutic modalities also requires a strong emphasis on the functional and mechanistic understanding of how molecular components in a biological process related to emerging infectious diseases work together. Onset of the outbreaks of recent decades, including but not limited to SARS-CoV-1, MERS, Ebola virus, Zika virus, Nipah virus, Yellow fever virus, Lassa virus, and the ongoing ever-devastating SARS-CoV-2 pandemic, also highlight the urgent need to devise a future-proof pandemic preparedness strategy and the demand for a fast and early response.

Canadian health promotion Health Systems Recovery in the Context of COVID-19 and Protracted Conflict Zsuzsanna Jakab, Sohel Saikat, Duncan Selbie, Saqif Mustafa, Yu Zhang, Geraldine McDarby, Mila Petrova, Redda Seifeldin, 2023-07-10 The COVID 19 pandemic has caused unprecedented disruption worldwide highlighting once again the interdependency of health and socioeconomic development and the global lack of health systems resilience Two years into the pandemic most countries report sustained disruptions across service delivery platforms and health areas with a profound impact on health outcomes The impact of these disruptions is magnified within marginalized communities and in countries experiencing protracted conflict There is an urgent need to focus on recovery through investment in the essential public health functions EPHFs and the foundations of health systems with a focus on primary health care and whole of government and society engagement The aim of this Research Topic is to gather transfer and promote operationalization of key experiences from COVID 19 to inform global and country level recovery that better promote health guide policy direction towards building health systems resilience and thereby ensure economic and social prosperity Experience with COVID 19 has demonstrated that traditional approaches to health system strengthening have failed to achieve the complementary goals of Universal Health Coverage UHC and health security with the divide between the most vulnerable and well off only widening Much of what had been learned from previous experiences such as Ebola in West Africa has not been widely applied This has left health and economic systems vulnerable to 21 st century public health challenges ranging from conflict and natural disasters to aging demographics and rising rates of non communicable and communicable diseases and antimicrobial resistance These challenges require intentional focus and investment as well as whole of government and society engagement with health to build health system resilience Greater action is needed to prevent the devastating effects of war and conflict on the health of the most vulnerable This Research Topic will convene the knowledge and practices of leaders in public health health systems and humanitarian and development sectors This is to ensure lessons from COVID 19 inform the recovery agenda and promote sustainable health and socioeconomic recovery for all Lest we forget and find ourselves again unprepared and vulnerable in the face of an even greater threat Persisting Pandemics Powel H. Kazanjian, 2024-11-15 Persisting Pandemics explores the history of syphilis and AIDS to provide insights into the limits of biomedicine and our experience with epidemics today Novel therapies developed for syphilis and AIDS became renowned in the medical field and the broader public sphere as exemplars of biomedical innovations Public health campaigns based on these spectacular biomedical advances however have repeatedly fallen short of their goals to eliminate syphilis and AIDS in the population The diseases epitomize the power of innovative biomedical therapies for the individual while unveiling limitations of scientific medicine in the domain of public health The need for a public health approach to address mistrust in science government indifference and racial inequalities is relevant for strategies to eliminate COVID 19 today Persisting Pandemics argues that campaigns to eliminate these diseases have not succeeded because they have not adequately addressed how diseases like AIDS syphilis and COVID spread unevenly

in populations according to race ethnicity and geographic location Despite the expectation of public health officials that medical advances would render epidemics obsolete new diseases continue to emerge and spread regardless of efforts to eliminate them Medical doctor and historian Powel H Kazanjian concludes that narratives of syphilis AIDS and COVID unlike smallpox do not contain a discrete ending at least not within the timelines specified by their elimination campaigns Instead they will be a continued part of our existence
