House of Commons - Public Administration Select Committee: Trith to Power: How Civil Service Reform Can Succeed - HC 74 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee,2013-09-06 The Public Administration Select Committee PASC has concluded a year long inquiry into the future of the Civil Service with only one recommendation that Parliament should establish a Joint Committee of both Houses to sit as a Commission on the future of the Civil Service It should be constituted within the next few months and report before the end of the Parliament with a comprehensive change programme for Whitehall with a timetable to be implemented over the lifetime of the next Parliament The Report considers the increased tensions between ministers and officials which have become widely reported and places the problems in Whitehall in a wider context of a Civil Service built on the Northcote Trevelyan settlement established in 1853 and the Haldane principles of ministerial accountability set out in 1919 The government s Civil Service Reform Plan lacks strategic coherence and clear leadership from a united team of ministers and officials The Northcote Trevelyan Civil Service remains the most effective way of supporting the democratically elected Government and future administrations in the UK Divided leadership and confused accountabilities in Whitehall have led to problems a low level of engagement amongst civil servants

in some departments and agencies and a general lack of trust and openness the Civil Service exhibits the key characteristics of a failing organisation with the leadership are in denial about the scale of the challenge they face There is a persistent lack of key skills and capabilities across Whitehall and an unacceptably high level of churn of lead officials which is incompatible with good government

Advances in Project Management Darren Dalcher,2016-03-23 On the evidence of the authors of Advances in Project Management Narrated Journeys in Uncharted Territory there is a sea change coming That change will affect the way projects are perceived lead and governed particularly in the context of the wider organisation to which they belong whether that is in the public private or not for profit sectors Many organisations have struggled to apply the traditional models of project management to their new projects in the global environment Anecdotal and evidence based research confirms that projects continue to fail at an alarming rate A major part of the build up to failure is often the lack of adequate project management knowledge and experience Advances in Project Management covers key areas of improvement in understanding and project capability further up the management chain amongst strategy and senior decision makers and amongst professional project and programme managers This collection drawn from some of the world s leading practitioners and researchers and compiled by Professor Darren Dalcher of the National Centre for Project Management provides those people and organisations who are involved with the developments in project management with the kind of structured information new approaches and novel perspectives that will inform their thinking and their practice and improve their decisions
