

A blue-toned photograph of a coastal landscape. In the foreground, the ocean's surface is textured with small waves. A path of white foam leads from the bottom center towards the horizon. To the right, a dark, silhouetted hill or cliff rises from the water's edge. In the upper right, a swan is captured in flight, its wings spread wide. The sky is a clear, pale blue.

Towards Another Summer Janet Frame:

Towards Another Summer Janet Frame, 2010-03-23 Self styled writer Grace Cleave has writer s block and her anxiety is only augmented by her chronic aversion to leaving her home to be among people even for five or ten minutes And so it is with trepidation that she accepts an invitation to spend a weekend away from London in the north of England Once there she feels more and more like a migratory bird as the pull of her native New Zealand makes life away from it seem transitory Grace longs to find her place in the world but first she must learn to be comfortable in her own skin feathers and all From the author of the universally acclaimed An Angel at My Table comes an exquisitely written novel of exile and return

social practice The Lost Child in Literature and Culture Mark Froud, 2017-10-18 This book is an extensive study of the figure of the lost child in English speaking and European literature and culture It argues that the lost child figure is of profound importance for our society a symptom as well as a cause of deep trauma This trauma or void is a fundamental disruption of the structures that define us self history and even language This puts the figure of the child in context with previous research that the modern conception of a child was formed alongside modern conceptions of memory The book analyses the representation of the lost child through fairy tales historical oppression and in recent novels and films The book then studies the connection of the lost child figure with the uncanny and its centrality to language The book considers the lost child figure as an archetype on a metaphysical and philosophical level as well as cultural Antipodean Childhoods Helga Ramsey-Kurz, Ulla Ratheiser, 2020-05-15 Though obvious the productiveness of combining the three concepts of childhood otherness and the postcolonial has not inspired much academic inquiry so far The essays assembled in this book make up for this omission and address aspects of growing up in Australia and New Zealand from various angles They base their argument on the premise that whether in settler migrant or indigenous communities children tend to be ascribed a space of their own mostly outside but never independent of that of adults How adults configure this space both practically and imaginatively for instance in the arts in adult and children s literature in film and photography or in historical documents is one of the questions answered in the process How these configurations have developed with time and under the influence of specific historical circumstances is another Thus the individual papers are more than a contribution to the current re discovery of the theme of childhood in European cultures in that Antipodean Childhoods remains centrally concerned with the cultural specificity of childhoods lived in Australia and New Zealand and with the theoretical relevance of this specificity to postcolonial literary cultural and historical studies Chasing Butterflies Vanessa Guignery, 2011 In 1951 Janet Frame published her first book The Lagoon and Other Stories a collection which would win the most prestigious national literary award in New Zealand and launch her fascinating career The essays collected in this volume examine the motifs at work in Frame s short stories and unravel a unique literary world which revisits the realist tradition and grants prose a poetic dimension As much a reflexion about language voice modes of writing and narrative strategies as an analysis of Frame s recurrent concerns with identity childhood relationships between mothers and daughters secrecy marginality community or death Chasing Butterflies is a great tribute to one of the most famous New Zealand writers Metafiction and the Postwar Novel Andrew Dean, 2021-04-01 Metafiction and the Postwar Novel is a full length reassessment of one of the definitive literary forms of the postwar period sometimes known as postmodern metafiction In the place of large scale theorizing this book centres on the intimacies of writing situations metafiction as it responds to readers literary reception and earlier works in a career The emergence of archival materials and posthumously published works helps to bring into view the stakes of different moments of writing It develops new terms for discussing literary self reflexivity derived from a reading of Don

Quixote and its reception by J L Borges the self of writing and the public author as signature Across three comprehensive chapters Metafiction and Postwar Fiction shows how some of the most highly regarded postwar writers were motivated to incorporate reflexive elements into their writing and to what ends The first chapter on South African novelist J M Coetzee shows with a new clarity how his fictions drew from and relativized academic literary theory and the conditions of writing in apartheid South Africa The second chapter on New Zealand writer Janet Frame draws widely from her fictions autobiographies and posthumously published materials It demonstrates the terms in which her writing addresses a readership seemingly convinced that her work expressed the interior experience of madness The final chapter on American writer Philip Roth shows how his early reception led to his later and often explosive reconsiderations of identity and literary value in postwar America

Life Writing and the End of Empire Emma Parker, 2024-03-21 The dismantlement of the British Empire had a profound impact on many celebrated white Anglophone writers of the twentieth century particularly those who were raised in former British colonial territories and returned to the metropole after the Second World War Formal decolonisation meant that these authors were unable to go home to their colonial childhoods a historical juncture with profound consequences for how they wrote and recorded their own lives Moving beyond previous discussions of imperial and colonial nostalgia Life Writing and the End of Empire is the first critical study of white memoirists and autobiographers who rewrote their memories of empire across numerous life narratives By focussing on these processual homecomings Emma Parker's study asks what it means to be at home in memories of empire whether in the settler farms of Southern Rhodesia or amidst the neon lights of Shanghai's International Settlement These discussions trace the legacies of empire to the habitations and detritus of everyday life from mansions and modest railway huts to empty swimming pools heirlooms and photograph albums Exploring works by Penelope Lively J G Ballard Doris Lessing and Janet Frame this study establishes new connections between authors usually discussed for their fiction and who have been hitherto unrecognised as post imperial life writers Offering close sustained analysis of autobiographies memoirs travel narratives and autofictions and identifying new subgenres such as speculative life writing this book advances rich new readings of autobiographical narrative By tracing the continuing importance of colonialism to white subjectivity the role of imperial memory in Britain and the ways that these unsettling forces move beneath the surface of modern and contemporary literature this study offers new conceptual insights to the fields of life writing and postcolonial studies

A Collection Of Essays Christina Christodoulou, 2012-02-27

Status, Power and Ritual Interaction Theodore D. Kemper, 2016-04-01 Sociologists mile Durkheim Erving Goffman and Randall Collins broadly suppose that ritual is foundational for social life By contrast this book argues that ritual is merely surface beneath which lie status and power the behavioral dimensions that drive all social interaction Status Power and Ritual Interaction identifies status and power as the twin forces that structure social relations determine emotions and link individuals to the reference groups that deliver culture and administer preferences actions beliefs and ideas An especially important contention is that allegiance to ideas even those as fundamental as the belief that 1 1 2 is primarily faithfulness to the reference groups that foster the ideas and not to the ideas themselves This triggers the counter intuitive deduction that the self a concept many sociologists social psychologists and therapists prize so highly is feckless and irrelevant Status power theory leads also to derivations about motivation play humor sacred symbols social bonding creative thought love and sex and other social involvements now either obscure or misunderstood Engaging with Durkheim on collective effervescence Goffman on ritual cum public order and Collins on interaction ritual this book is richly illustrated with instances of how to examine many central questions about society and social interaction from the status power perspective It speaks not only to sociologists but also to anthropologists behavioral economists and social and clinical psychologists to all disciplines that examine or treat of social life

Crowded House's Together Alone Barnaby Smith,2025-05-15 Intertextual passionate and personal throughout Crowded House's Together Alone is a key addition to the surprisingly limited range of scholarship on one of Australasia's most successful and adored bands Fusing pop music with place and landscape Crowded House's Together Alone 1993 was unprecedented in its Australasian context and in the process of making this album the group's sound transformed profoundly Crowded House's Together Alone examines why Neil Finn took the daring decision to record amid the wilds of Karekare Beach West Auckland considers how British producer Youth impacted the band's dynamics and places the album within a wider artistic context expanding beyond pop The book also recounts author Barnaby Smith's visit to Karekare on the trail of Together Alone's atmospheric melancholy a psychogeographic adventure exploring what it means to visit a landscape under the spell of the music it has inspired A song by song analysis further explores the fragile alchemy that produced the most poetic statement in the Crowded House catalogue

Migration and Mental Health Marjory Harper,2016-06-17 The relationship between migration and mental health is controversial contested and pertinent In a highly mobile world where voluntary and enforced movements of population are increasing and likely to continue to grow that relationship needs to be better understood yet the terminology is often vague and the issues are wide ranging Getting to grips with them requires tools drawn from different disciplines and professions Such a multidisciplinary approach is central to this book Six historical studies are integrated with chapters by a theologian geographer anthropologist social worker and psychiatrist to produce an evaluation that addresses key concepts and methodologies and reflects practical involvement as well as academic scholarship Ranging from the mid nineteenth century to the present the book explores the causes of mental breakdown among migrants the psychological changes stemming from their struggles with challenging life circumstances and changes in medical political and public attitudes and responses in different eras and locations
