Markets and Exchanges in Pre-Modern and Traditional Societies Juan Carlos Moreno Garcia, 2021-06-30 Markets emerge in recent historical research as important spheres of economic interaction in ancient societies In the case of ancient Egypt traditional models imagined an all encompassing centralized bureaucratic economy that left practically no place for market transactions as many surviving documents only described the activities of the royal palace and of huge institutions mainly temples Yet scattered references in the sources reveal that markets and traders were crucial actors in the economic life of ancient Egypt In this perspective this volume aims to discuss the role of markets traders and economic interaction not necessarily organized through markets and the use of money metals valuable commodities in pre modern societies based on archaeological anthropological and historical evidence Furthermore it intends to integrate different perspectives about the social organization of transactions and exchanges and the different forms taken by markets from meeting places where exchanges operated under ritualized procedures and conventions to markets in which profit seeking activities were marginal in respect with other practices that stressed on the contrary community collaboration The book also deals with social forms of pre modern exchanges in which trust and ethnic solidarity guaranteed the validity of commercial operations in the absence of formal codes of laws or accepted authorities over long distances trade diasporas guilds etc Finally the volume analyzes a critical aspect of small scale trade and markets such as the commercialization of agricultural household production and its impact on the peasant economic strategies In all the book covers a diversity of topics in which recent research in the fields of economic sociology archaeology anthropology economics and history proves invaluable in order to analyze the role of Egyptian trade in a broader perspective as well as to suggest new venues of comparative research theoretical reflection and dialogue between Egyptology and social sciences

The Many Faces of War in the Ancient World Graham

Wrightson, Sabine Müller, 2015-09-10 This volume on different aspects of warfare and its political implications in the ancient world brings together the works of both established and younger scholars working on a historical period that stretches from the archaic period of Greece to the late Roman Empire With its focus on cultural and social history it presents an overview of several current issues concerning the new military history The book contains papers that can be conveniently divided into three parts Part I is composed of three papers primarily concerned with archaic and classical Greece though the third covers a wide range and relates the experience of the ancient Greeks to that of soldiers in the modern world one might even argue that the comparison works in reverse Part II comprises five papers on warfare in the age of Alexander the Great and on its reception early in the Hellenistic period These demonstrate that the study of Alexander as a military figure is hardly a well worn theme but rather in its relative infancy whether the approach is the tried and true and wrongly disparaged method of Quellenforschung or that of experiencing war something that has recently come into fashion Part III offers three papers on war in the time of Imperial Rome particularly on the fringes of the Empire Covering a wide chronological span Greek Macedonian and Roman cultures and various topics this volume shows the importance and actuality of research on the history of war and the diversity of the approaches to this task as well as the different angles from which it can be analysed

Migration and Mobility in the Ancient Near East and Egypt - the Crossroads IV Ludovica Bertolini, Jana Mynarova, Federico Zangani, 2024-06-15 Movement and mobility represent intertwined concepts that have persisted throughout human history The act of moving from one place to another is however intricately tied to the challenges that hinder it These obstacles can either be natural in origin or the product of human design aimed at constraining the movement of individuals or groups Furthermore movement and mobility can also manifest themselves within society encompassing the fluid shifts of people within the social hierarchy and the transitions between various social groups The transfer of words technologies and religious ideologies often accompanies these human movements The region of ancient Western Asia and northeast Africa serves as a rich repository of evidence for these forms of movement and mobility extensively documented through written sources and material culture The essays collected in this volume variously examine the political dimensions of movement and mobility how ideas concepts and languages move across boundaries and the material evidence for cultural interactions The Maritime Economy of Ancient Cyprus in Terms of the New Institutional Economics Andreas P.

Murray,2017-04-24 This book provides a comprehensive treatment of change in long distance exchange systems during this tumultuous time combining a formidable array of evidence to demonstrate that Greece underwent a serious economic crisis but one that gave rise to a whole new set of institutions and economic structures
