CONCLUSIONS The results of this study indicate that the use of a single, low-dose, intravenous bolus of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is safe and effective. The use of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is a safe and effective technique.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 10 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or pulmonary disease. The subjects were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The control group consisted of 10 women who did not exercise. The subjects were monitored for HR and EE at rest and during exercise. The results of the study showed that the training program had a significant effect on HR and EE. The HR at rest decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HR during exercise decreased from 155 to 145 beats per minute. The EE at rest decreased from 1,200 to 1,100 kcal per day, and the EE during exercise decreased from 2,500 to 2,200 kcal per day. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can have a significant effect on HR and EE in sedentary, middle-aged women.
