Women, America, and Movement Susan L. Roberson,1998 Since the colonial days American women have traveled migrated and relocated always faced with the challenge of reconstructing their homes for themselves and their families Women America and Movement offers a journey through largely unexplored territory the experiences of migrating American women These narratives both real and imagined represent a range of personal and critical perspectives some of the women describe their travels as expansive and freeing while others relate the dreadful costs and sacrifices of relocating Despite the range of essays featured in this study the writings all coalesce around the issues of politics poetry and self identity described by Adrienne Rich as the elements of the politics of location treated here as the politics of relocation The narratives featured in this book explore the impact of race class and sexual economics on migratory women their self identity and their roles in family and social life These issues demonstrate that in addition to geographic place ideology is itself a space to be traversed By examining the writings of such women as Louise Erdrich Zora Neale Hurston and Gertrude Stein the essayists included in this volume offer a variety of experiences The book confronts such issues as racist politicking against Native Americans African Americans and Asian immigrants sexist attitudes that limit women to the roles of wife mother and sexual object and exploitation of migrants from Appalachia and of women newly arrived in America These essays also delve into the writings themselves by looking at what happens to narrative structure as authors or their characters cross geographic boundaries The reader sees how women writers negotiate relocation in their texts and how the written word becomes a place where one finds oneself Analyzing

World Fiction Frederick Luis Aldama, 2011-09-01 Why are many readers drawn to stories that texture ethnic experiences and identities other than their own How do authors such as Salman Rushdie and Maxine Hong Kingston or filmmakers in Bollywood or Mexico City produce complex fiction that satisfies audiences worldwide In Analyzing World Fiction fifteen renowned luminaries use tools of narratology and insights from cognitive science and neurobiology to provide answers to these questions and more With essays ranging from James Phelan's Voice Politics and Judgments in Their Eyes Were Watching God and Hilary Dannenberg's Narrating Multiculturalism in British Media Voice and Cultural Identity in Television to Ellen McCracken's exploration of paratextual strategies in Chicana literature this expansive collection turns the tide on approaches to postcolonial and multicultural phenomena that tend to compress author and narrator text and real life Striving to celebrate the art of fiction the voices in this anthology explore the ingredients that make for powerful universally intriguing deeply human story weaving Systematically synthesizing the tools of narrative theory along with findings from the brain sciences to analyze multicultural and postcolonial film literature and television the contributors pioneer new techniques for appreciating all facets of the wonder of storytelling
