

A photograph of three women standing on a flat, rocky ledge of a mountain peak. They are all wearing hats and casual hiking attire. The woman on the left is in a white shirt and dark shorts, the middle woman is in a dark blue shirt and dark shorts, and the woman on the right is in a dark blue tank top and light-colored shorts. All three have their arms raised in a celebratory gesture. The background shows a vast, hazy landscape of rolling green hills under a bright blue sky with scattered white clouds. The rocky ledge they are standing on is dark and craggy, with a steep drop-off visible on the right side.

After graduating from college, Jennifer isn't sure what she wants to do with her life. Through inexperienced and unprepared, she feels drawn to the Appalachian Trail and sets out along the long distance footpath that stretches 2,175 miles from Georgia to Maine. The next five months are the most physically and emotionally challenging of her life, coping with blisters and aching shoulders, hiking through endless torrents of rain and a blizzard, facing unwanted company and encountering tragedy. The trail becomes a modern day Odyssey that tests Jennifer's faith in God, humanity, and herself. But even at her lowest points, it provides enduring friendships, unexpected laughter, and the gift of self-discovery. With every step she takes, Jennifer transitions from an overconfident college graduate to a student of the trail. As she travels along the ridges of the ancient mountain chain, she realizes that she isn't walking through nature; she realizes she is part of nature. And she learns that the Appalachian Trail is more than a 2,175 mile hike; it is a journey that will change a person forever.

Becoming Odyssea Jennifer Pharr Davis, 2010. After graduating from college, Jennifer isn't sure what she wants to do with her life. She is drawn to the Appalachian Trail, a 2,175 mile footpath that stretches from Georgia to Maine. Though her friends and family think she's crazy, she sets out alone to hike the trail, hoping it will give her time to think about what she wants to do next. The next four months are the most physically and emotionally challenging of her life. She quickly discovers that thru-hiking is harder than she had imagined, coping with blisters and aching shoulders from the 30 pound pack she carries, sleeping on the hard wooden floors of trail shelters, hiking through endless torrents of rain, and even a blizzard. With every step she takes, Jennifer transitions from an overconfident college graduate to a student of the trail, braving situations she never imagined before her thru-hike. The trail is full of unexpected kindness, generosity, and humor. And when tragedy strikes, she learns that she can depend on other people to help her in times of need.
