Gender, Politics and Land Use in Zimbabwe 1980–2012 Mafa, Onias, Gudhlanga, Enna S., 2015-10-19 The agrarian reform dynamics in southern Africa have to be understood within the framework of colonial land policies and legislation that were designed essentially to expropriate land and natural resource property rights from the indigenous people in favour of the white settlers Colonial land policies institutionalised racial inequity with regard to land although conditions are not homogeneous there are broad themes that cut across the southern Africa region Colonialism dispossessed and impoverished the people by taking away the most productive lands Neoliberal globalization has undermined the people's well being through direct influences on agriculture and rural economies in conjunction with policies promoted by national governments and international agencies Another shared feature is to be found in the high rates of unemployment poor returns to small scale agriculture lack of access to social services such as health and education all of which serve to erode existing livelihood activities and perpetuate relative and absolute poverty in rural areas This comparative study on Zimbabwe's agrarian reforms may provide countries such as South Africa and Namibia with valuable lessons as they attempt their own land reforms Conflicts between colonialists and the indigenous people in the then Rhodesia centred mainly on the land question This inequitable distribution of land resulted in Africans waging liberation struggles in order to reclaim their land from the colonialists In most post colonial countries calls have been made for land redistribution as a way of redressing colonial injustices in land tenure systems The process of reclamation of land and redistributing it to the indigenous people is fraught with problems and has resulted in the present day land crisis in many parts of Africa and other continents These are some of the issues this book examines attempts to understand and explain from a gender perspective Gender relations are viewed in terms of land use and ownership in pre colonial colonial and post colonial Zimbabwe These socially constructed roles have been found to be unequal in terms of power and decision making It is argued that lessening of social inequalities between men and women reduces poverty raises farm efficiency and improves natural resource management The book emphasizes that once women are empowered the quality of life of their households improves Human Rights and the

Judicialisation of African Politics Peter Brett, 2018-09-18 Human Rights and the Judicialisation of African Politics shows readers how central questions in African politics have entered courtrooms over the last three decades and provides the first transnational explanation for this development The book begins with three conditions that have made judicialisation possible in Africa as a whole new corporate rights norms including the expansion of indigenous rights the proliferation of new avenues for legal proceedings and the development of new support structures enabling litigation It then studies the effects of these changes based on fieldwork in three Southern African countries Zimbabwe Namibia and Botswana Examining three recent court cases involving international law international courts and transnational NGOs it looks beyond some of international relations established models to explain when and why and legal rights can be clarified This text will be of key

Recognition Politics in Settler Colonial States Emile Badarin, 2025-06-26 Using Palestine as a case study Recognition Politics in Settler Colonial States shows how recognition politics operate to legitimize long standing colonial power structures In existing scholarship recognition has been seen as an asset coveted by indigenous communities This book forwards a new theoretically ground breaking perspective Emile Badarin shows that in colonial contexts settlers use recognition to legitimize and normalize the dispossession and elimination of Indigenous people More than this settler colonial states themselves actively pursue recognition employing it as a means to further the elimination of the indigenous societies they seek to replace In making the case the book critically examines the Euromodern categories of race racism and racial hierarchies and draws new conclusions about the interplay between colonialism racism and Zionism Central to this analysis is how anti Zionism has been strategically equated with anti Semitism and effectively used as a tool for the advancement of both settler colonialism in Palestine and Israel s recognition on the international stage The book delves into indigenous normative resistance against colonial recognition politics through the lens of the Palestinian practice of umud steadfastness extracting its philosophy of liberation as a pathway towards a decolonial future for all in Palestine and beyond

Labour and Economic Change in Southern Africa c.1900-2000 Rory Pilosof, Andrew Cohen, 2021-06-03 This book explores the social and economic development of Zimbabwe Zambia and Malawi over the course of the twentieth century These three countries have long shared and interconnected pasts All three were drawn into the British Empire at a similar time and the formation of the ill fated Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland formally linked these countries together for a decade in the mid twentieth century This formal political relationship created dynamics that resulted in yet closer economic and social links After Federation the economic realities of industry transport and labour supplies meant that these three countries continued to be intricately interconnected Yet despite these connected pasts comparative work on the economic histories of Malawi Zambia and Zimbabwe and how these change over time is rare This book addresses the gap by providing the first comprehensive collection of labour and census data across the twentieth century for these three countries The different economic models and performances of these states offer good comparison allowing researchers to look at different models of development and how these played out over the long term The book provides data on population growth and change industrial and occupational structure and the various shifts in what the economically active population did It will be useful for historians economists development studies scholars and non governmental organisations working on twentieth century and contemporary southern Africa The Times Index, January -December 2012 ,2012
