Robot Oriented Design Thomas Bock, Thomas Linner, 2015-05-05 The Cambridge Handbooks on Construction Robotics

series focuses on the implementation of automation and robot technology to renew the construction industry and to arrest its declining productivity. The series is intended to give professionals, researchers, lecturers, and students basic conceptual and technical skills and implementation strategies to manage research or teach the implementation of advanced automation and robot technology based processes and technologies in construction. Currently, the implementation of modern developments in product structures, modularity, and design for manufacturing, organizational strategies just in time, just in sequence, and pulling production, and informational aspects, computer aided design, manufacturing, or computer integrated manufacturing are lagging because of the lack of modern integrated machine technology in construction. The Cambridge Handbooks on Construction Robotics books discuss progress in robot systems theory and demonstrate their integration using real systematic applications and projections for off site as well as on site building production. Robot Oriented Design and Management introduces the design innovation and management methodologies that are key to the realization and implementation of the advanced concepts and technologies presented in the subsequent volumes. This book describes the efficient deployment of advanced construction and building technology. It is concerned with the coadaptation of construction products, processes, organization, and management, and with automated robotic technology so that the implementation of modern technology becomes easier and more efficient. It is also concerned with technology and innovation management methodologies and the generation of life cycle oriented views related to the use of advanced technologies in construction.

Principles of Microbiological Troubleshooting in the Industrial Food Processing Environment Jeffrey Kornacki, 2010-05-19. Principles of Microbiological Troubleshooting in the Industrial Food Processing Environment provides proven approaches and suggestions for finding sources of microbiological contamination of industrially produced products. Industrial food safety professionals find themselves responsible for locating and eliminating the sources of food contamination. These are often complex situations for which they have not been adequately prepared. This book is written with them, the in plant food safety quality assurance professional, in mind. However, other professionals will also benefit, including plant managers, regulatory field investigators, technical food safety policy makers, college instructors, and students of food science and microbiology. A survey of the personal and societal costs of microbial contamination of food is followed by a wide range of respected authors who describe selected bacterial pathogens, emerging pathogens, spoilage organisms, and their significance to the industry and consumer. Dr. Kornacki then provides real life examples of in plant risk areas, practices depicted with photographs taken from a wide variety of food processing facilities. Factors influencing microbial growth, survival, and death are also described. The reader will find herein a practical framework for troubleshooting and for assessing the potential for product contamination in their own facilities, as well as suggestions for conducting their own in plant investigations. Selected tools for testing the environment and statistical approaches to testing ingredients and finished product are also described. The book provides suggestions for starting up after a processing line or lines have been shut down.

due to a contamination risk The authors conclude with an overview of molecular subtyping and its value with regard to in plant investigations Numerous nationally recognized authors in the field have contributed to the book The editor Dr Jeffery L Kornacki is President and Senior Technical Director of the consulting firm Kornacki Microbiology Solutions in Madison Wisconsin He is also Adjunct Faculty with the Department of Food Science at the University of Georgia and also with the National Food Safety Toxicology Center at Michigan State University
