Transport Developments And Innovations In An Evolving World Advances In Spatial Science:

Transport Developments and Innovations in an Evolving World Michel Beuthe, Veli Himanen, Aura Reggiani, Luca Zamparini, 2013-06-05 Our world is continuously changing as new technologies are developed demographic patterns evolve and new social and political configurations emerge However most people would agree that not unlike the time of the Industrial Revolution the rate of change has accelerated over the last few decades It is certainly the case of many economic activities where the trend towards globalization supported by a faster diffusion of knowledge and information economies of scale the opening of borders and improved transport networks has induced a spatial redistribution of production and ownership Until recently the concomitant economic growth eased the way towards the necessary reorganization but at the same time created additional environmental and transport problems This phenomenon is pervasive all around the globe but it particularly affects the European continent which is still fragmented by administrative cultural and linguistic differences national boundaries and rivalries In this context the slow but persistent drive towards market integration and deregulation makes Europe an extraordinary laboratory for politicians economic researchers and especially for transport analysts

Transport Developments and Innovations in an Evolving World Michel Beuthe, 2004-04-05 The book is describing technological developments as well as urban futures in the information age where the development of ICT sets the pace and options Despite this dynamic development the book describes how stable daily travelling still is and highlights the achievable impacts and acceptability of transport policy measures Freight transport is discussed from the viewpoint of industry In addition some innovative approaches in rearranging current freight transport networks are given Transport future is mapped from various viewpoints Light rail is presented as a possible backbone of urban regions Methods to evaluate the societal consensus related to the spatial development linked to transport infrastructures are described Methods to assess spatial planning policies are presented as well as options for benchmarking local public transport companies Advances in Spatial Econometrics Luc Anselin, Raymond Florax, Sergio J. Rey, 2013-03-09 The volume on New Directions in Spatial Econometrics appeared in 1995 as one of the first in the then new Springer series on Advances in Spatial Sciences It very quickly became evident that the book satisfied a pent up demand for a collection of advanced papers dealing with the methodology and application of spatial econometrics This emerging subfield of applied econometrics focuses on the incorporation of location and spatial interaction in the specification estimation and diagnostic testing of regression models The current effort is a follow up to the New Directions volume Even though the number of empirical and theoretical journal articles dealing with various aspects of spatial econometrics has grown tremendously in the recent past the need remained to bring together an advanced collection on methodology tools and applications This volume contains several papers that were presented at special sessions on spatial econometrics organized as part of a number of conferences of the Regional Science Association International In addition a few papers were invited for submission All papers were refereed The focus in the volume reflects the advances made in the field in recent years Fifty Years of Regional Science Raymond Florax, David A. Plane, 2013-04-17 This book contains the complete text of the special Golden Anniversary issue of the flagship journal of the Regional Science Association International RSAI Papers in Regional Science Volume 83 Number 1 as well as the full text of Walter Isard's Presidential Address The future near and far of regional science Professor Isard originally delivered the speech in a special plenary session of the fiftieth North American Meetings of the Regional Science Association International The session began with a ceremonial kickoff to the year long celebration of the multidisciplinary field's first 50 years At the ceremony held on the morning of Friday November 21 2004 at the DoubleTree Hotel in Philadelphia we presented Walter Isard the founder of our multidisciplinary field as well as Antoine Bailly the President of the Regional Science Association International and David Boyce the Association's Archivist with commemorative first copies of the anniversary issue This book entitled Fifty Years of Regional Science consists of a compendium of thought papers authored by a representative sampling of some of the field's leading scholars For the special journal issue we originally titled the collection The Brightest of Dawns

Growth and Innovation of Competitive Regions Ugo Fratesi, Lanfranco Senn, 2008-12-29 Time Time b a Space Space Time Time c d Space Space Fig 1 Different possible scales for growth and innovation analyses spatial dimension the sectoral dimension and the time dimension are represented In Fig 1a regional development analyses are revealed where the economy is sliced vertically into regions and their dynamics are investigated The study of the evolution of industries typical of evolutionary industrial economics is represented in Fig 1b where the economy is divided horizontally into sectoral slices This approach has progressed considerably in recent years see Malerba 2006 for a recent survey Modifications of industries have important spatial implications which however are not normally at the core of these analyses even though spatial patterns of innovation differ greatly from sector to sector Breschi 2000 Our approach operates in the manner of Fig 1a and we will focus on regions extending the analysis to industries only where this is regionally and structurally relevant Hence the approach in the book belongs to the tradition of regional development theories but in contrast to the more traditional analyses we will not consider the region as an economic unit per se Rather interactions between and within regions are very relevant to the performance of individual regions in an integrated world and will be at the core of the analyses of the following chapters

Spatial Econometrics Giuseppe Arbia, 2006-06-08 In recent years the so called new economic geography and the issue of regional economic convergence have increasingly drawn the interest of economists to the empirical analysis of regional and spatial data However even if the methodology for econometric treatment of spatial data is well developed there does not exist a textbook theoretically grounded well motivated and easily accessible to economists who are not specialists Spatial econometric techniques receive little or no attention in the major econometric textbooks Very occasionally the standard econometric textbooks devote a few paragraphs to the subject but most of them simply ignore the subject On the other hand spatial econometric books such as Anselin 1988 or Anselin Florax and Rey 2004 provide comprehensive and exhaustive treatments of the topic but are not always easily accessible for people whose main degree is not in quantitative economics or statistics This book aims at bridging the gap between economic theory and spatial statistical methods It starts by strongly motivating the reader towards the problem with examples based on real data then provides a rigorous treatment founded on stochastic fields theory of the basic spatial linear model and finally discusses the simpler cases of violation of the classical regression assumptions that occur when dealing with spatial data

Complexity and Spatial Networks Aura

Reggiani, Peter Nijkamp, 2009-08-14 Complex systems analysis has become a fascinating topic in modern research on non linear dynamics not only in the physical sciences but also in the life sciences and the social sciences After the era of bifurcation theory chaos theory syn getics resilience analysis network dynamics and evolutionary thinking currently we observe an increasing interest in critical transitions of dynamic real world systems in many disciplines such as demography biology psychology economics earth sciences geology seismology medical sciences and so on The relevance of this approach is clearly reflected in such phenomena as traffic congestion financial crisis ethnic conflicts ecosystem breakdown health failures etc This has prompted a world wide interest in complex systems Geographical space is one of the playgrounds for complex dynamics as is witnessed by population movements transport flows retail developments urban expansion lowland flooding and so forth All such dynamic phenomena have one feature in common the low predictability of uncertain interrelated events occurring at different interconnected spatio temporal scale levels and often originating from different disciplinary backgrounds The study of the associated non linear fast and slow dynamic transition paths calls for a joint research effort of scientists from different disciplines in order to understand the nature the roots and the consequences of unexpected or unpredictable changes in complex spatial systems

The Emerging Digital Economy Börje Johansson, Charlie

Karlsson, Roger Stough, 2006-09-22 This book provides a balanced empirically based view of the Digital Economy and explores its regional and geographical import in areas where the Digital Economy meets more traditional patterns More than just an interpretive analysis this book utilizes empirical evidence in its assessment of the dynamics of specific regions in different parts of the world The book also examines the policy implications of the rising Digital Economy

Critical Infrastructure Alan T. Murray, Tony Grubestic, 2007-05-05 This text brings together differing geographic perspectives in modeling and analysis in order to highlight infrastructure weaknesses or plan for their protection Offering new methodological approaches the book explores the potential consequences of critical infrastructure failure stemming from both man made and natural disasters The approaches employed are wide ranging including geographic economic and social perspectives

Methods and Models in Transport and Telecommunications

Aura Reggiani, Laurie A. Schintler, 2006-03-30 One aspect of the new economy is a transition to a networked society and the emergence of a highly interconnected interdependent and complex system of networks to move people goods and information An example of this is the increasing reliance of networked systems e.g. air transportation networks electric power grid maritime transport etc on telecommunications and information infrastructure Many of the networks that evolved today have an added complexity in that they have both a spatial structure i.e. they are located in physical space but also a spatial dimension brought on largely by their dependence on information technology They are also often just one component of a larger system of geographically integrated and overlapping networks operating at different spatial levels An understanding of these complexities is imperative for the design of plans and policies that can be used to optimize the efficiency performance and safety of transportation telecommunications and other networked systems In one sense technological advances along with economic forces that encourage the clustering of activities in space to reduce transaction costs have led to more efficient network structures At the same time the very properties that make these networks more efficient have also put them at a greater risk for becoming disconnected or significantly disrupted when super connected nodes are removed either intentionally or through a targeted attack

Modelling Regional Scenarios for the Enlarged Europe

Roberta Capello, Roberto P. Camagni, Barbara Chizzolini, Ugo Fratesi, 2008-02-01 Tackling the question of what the European territory will look like over the next fifteen years this volume provides qualitative territorial scenarios for the enlarged Europe under different assumptions on future globalisation strategies of BRIC Brazil Russia India and China and East and West European countries The approach is as neutral as possible vis-à-vis the results leading to a new forecasting model the MASST model built by the authors

Globalization and Urban Development

Harry W. Richardson, Chang-Hee C. Bae, 2006-03-30 Most research on globalization has focused on macroeconomic and economy wide consequences This book explores an under researched area the impacts of globalization on cities and national urban hierarchies especially but not solely in developing countries Most of the globalization urban research has concentrated on the global cities e.g. New York London Paris Tokyo that influence what happens in the rest of the world In contrast this research looks at the cities at the receiving end of the forces of globalization The general finding is that large cities on balance benefit from globalization although in some cases at the expense of widening spatial inequities

Road Pricing, the Economy and the Environment

C. Jensen-Butler, Brigitte Sloth, Morten M. Larsen, Bjarne Madsen, Otto A. Nielsen, 2008-01-24 Economic growth and globalisation create traffic growth leading to congestion which again increases travel times and costs Road pricing is an instrument that may efficiently reduce the negative impacts This volume is a collection of research papers on the use of road pricing The focus is on passenger transport and the papers cover a wide range of approaches including theoretical modelling and empirical studies of road pricing experience from different cities

Cities' Vocabularies and the Sustainable Development of the Silkroads

Stella Kostopoulou, Gricelda Herrera-Franco, Jacob Wood, Kheir Al-Kodmany, 2023-09-27 This book discusses how cities identities are formed and developed over time and portrays architecture and the arts as the embodiment of the historical cultural and economic characteristics of cities Furthermore it explores strategies and solutions to preserve the cultural heritage along the Silk Road representing a compilation of research addressing the economic and social opportunities and challenges related to the development of a more sustainable and responsible approach to tourism development and the preservation of heritage As such it covers a wide range of audiences including economists architects planners tourism experts and decision makers interested in making use of cities available resources and features offering strategies to explore development opportunities through sustainable and responsible tourism along the Silk Road This book is a culmination of selected research papers from the first version of the International Conference on Silk Road Sustainable Tourism Development and Cultural Heritage SRSTDCH which was held in 2021 in collaboration with Aristotle University of Thessaloniki the European Interdisciplinary Silk Road Tourism Centre Greece and the 5th Edition of the International Conference on Cities Identity Through Architecture and Arts CITAA which was held in 2021 in collaboration with University of Pisa Italy Globalization and Regional Economic Modeling Russel Cooper,Kieran Donaghy,Geoffrey Hewings,2007-09-23 Globalization is affecting regional economies in a broad spectrum of aspects from labor market conditions and development policies to climate change To understand better how this works we need both conceptual and methodological contributions We need new schemes to organize our thinking direct our attention and frame thought experiments on the basis of which guidance may be offered And we need methodological innovations that enable us to carry out studies and thought experiments at levels of spatial and temporal resolution and formal complexity adequate to capture and account for the phenomena that characterize globalization The chapters of this volume written by an international cast of eminent regional scientists represent contributions of both types in many cases introducing and demonstrating the use of new tools for analyzing and understanding enormous changes underway in regional economies around the world European Metropolitan Housing Markets Ake E. Andersson,Lars Pettersson,Ulf Strömquist,2007-07-28 This book provides a comprehensive analysis of housing theory and policy with a focus on metropolitan regions The results are based on case studies of twelve European metropolitan regions including expert panels organized in each Using an approach from the field of industrial economics the analysis is divided into the three related stages structure conduct and performance The essential idea is that the structure of a market defined by market conditions market growth forms of competition and control influences the economic behavior of both companies and households The effects of this behavior can be observed in the development of prices exchanged constructed and maintained housing quantities location patterns and choice of space The contributions of this volume reveal significant differences in housing policies between European countries while at the same time showing that policy effects are well in line with expectations based on traditional housing theory Regional Disparities in Small Countries Daniel Felsenstein,2005-05-09 This book challenges the common perception that significant regional disparities do not exist in small countries As small developed countries become increasingly competitive and their economic structures resemble those of the large a re assessment of the regional consequences of these changes is of timely importance Regional Disparities in Small Countries presents a systematic discussion of the unique theoretical methodological and measurement challenges in analyzing regional inequalities in small countries and a series of empirical analyses addressing the issue of regional convergence and divergence in these countries With contributions from leading regional scientists and economists this book also examines the policy experience of small countries in closing regional gaps and the effectiveness of public interventions in this field see Reviews Social Capital in the Knowledge Economy Hans Westlund, 2006-09-24 It is possible that there once was a time when scholars used to sit isolated with their cogitations in their attics emerging now and then to publish their latest edited offerings which no one had ever thought of before If such a time did once exist it certainly does so no longer Writing a scientific or scholarly book in our era is to a large extent a team effort in which your team members are continually changing and you are unceasingly grateful for the privilege of enjoying and benefiting from the exertions ideas comments and support of a large number of very able people Scientific and scholarly work nowadays is a process impossible without the existence and use of social capital This book is no exception to the above stated There are very many colleagues some of them referees and thus anonymous and friends who have made the book possible The foremost of these is Roger Bolton with whom I wrote my first paper on social capital Most of that paper has found its way into various passages of this book while Chapter 6 Social Capital and Entrepreneurship comes almost completely from Roger's pen Thank you Roger for letting me use your text The empirical studies of the biotech industries of Japan California and Sweden would have been impossible without a great deal of help

The Blame Game Brendan Flynn, 2007 Dr Flynn covers all of the above questions and more in his new book The Blame Game A must read for anyone interested in environmental issues in Ireland Ireland's record in the field of environmental protection is one of the worst in Europe and this book explores the reasons why It examines the evolution of Irish environmental policy over the so called Celtic Tiger years of Ireland's economic boom while looking to the future as well It considers why Ireland's environmental performance has been so lacklustre during this period and what scope exists for improvement The emphasis is placed primarily on institutional aspects of Irish environmental policy In particular this book offers a strong critique of the current Irish style of reaching environmental decisions an excessive dependence on legal instruments and a weak Irish local government system The author further argues that Ireland has developed an institutional style of policy making that urgently needs reform He suggests a number of discreet but related problems that need to be understood and addressed These include an excessive adversarial style of interaction between environmentalists the Irish state and business the blame game described in the title Also fatal is a complacency among the Irish policy elite who have chosen to downplay environmental problems and continue to think of environmental policy as merely about corrective regulation rather than adopting the wider and more ambitious vision of sustainable development Individual chapters cover a range of topics and the book will appeal to readers interested in comparative environmental policy and politics the role of institutions in environmental policy making or indeed anyone keen to understand the post Celtic Tiger politics and society of an Ireland in transition
