Gender, Technology and Violence Marie Segrave, Laura Vitis, 2017-06-26 Technological developments move at lightening pace and can bring with them new possibilities for social harm This book brings together original empirical and theoretical work examining how digital technologies both create and sustain various forms of gendered violence and provide platforms for resistance and criminal justice intervention This edited collection is organised around two key themes of facilitation and resistance with an emphasis through the whole collection on the development of a gendered interrogation of contemporary practices of technologically enabled or enhanced practices of violence Addressing a broad range of criminological issues such as intimate partner violence rape and sexual assault online sexual harassment gendered political violence online culture cyberbullying and human trafficking and including a critical examination of the broader issue of feminist vigilantism and resistance to online sexual harassment this book examines the ways in which new and emerging technologies facilitate new platforms for gendered violence as well as offering both formal and informal opportunities to prevent and or respond to gendered violence

Reasons to Doubt Carolyn Hoyle, Mai Sato, 2019-01-10 This book reveals what happens to applications for post conviction review when those in England Wales and Northern Ireland who believe they are wrongfully convicted apply to the Criminal Cases Review Commission the only body that can refer a case back to the Court of Appeal once appellants opportunities for direct appeal are exhausted While the Court is obliged to hear all such referrals the Commission can only refer a case where it believes there is a real possibility that the Court will quash the conviction. The first empirical study of all stages of decision making within the Commission this book starts from the premise that the test applied by the Commission the real possibility test is not inflexible. Though created by statute and refined through case law it must be determined on a case by case basis drawing too on cultural and structural variables alongside fresh evidence gathered by the Commission. Through in depth analysis of case files and interviews Hoyle and Sato scrutinize the Commissions operational practices its working rules and assumptions considering how these influence its understanding of the real possibility test. Situating their rich empirical data within a framework of the Commissions social organizational and legal contexts this book demonstrates that in its open ended investigations there is considerable scope for discretion for thorough exploration of all possible avenues or for choosing a more superficial consideration of a case. It emerges that while structured internal guidance drawing heavily on Court jurisprudence shapes decision making creating consistency in approach there remains some variability across cases over time that can be accounted for by the different professional backgrounds and personalities of Commission staff.

Women's Desistance in a Colonial Context

Grace Low, 2025-02-18 This book adds to global knowledge of pathways out of crime desistance by exploring the desistance narratives of 15 women with histories of imprisonment in Aotearoa New Zealand 10 of whom identify as M ori New Zealand s Indigenous population. By voicing these women s experiences the book adds to desistance research by moving beyond the mainstream Western nations which dominate desistance literature such as the United States and UK to explore how historical and structural influences including Aotearoa New Zealand s colonial history shape women s offending and desistance trajectories. This book explores the women s journeys in and out of crime including the various socio structural constraints which could impede the women s desistance efforts especially for M ori women who are overrepresented in Aotearoa New Zealand s prison population. This book explores the influence of the women s personal relationships with families of origin wh nau intimate partners friends associates and children and their institutional interactions i e their experiences of employment drug alcohol addiction treatment and other forms of rehabilitative support. The book also takes a close look at the role of housing and the more subjective notion of home in the women s offending and desistance journeys. It makes recommendations for policy and practice to support women leaving prison in Aotearoa New Zealand and internationally with an emphasis on the importance of wider community support. This book makes an original contribution to desistance literature by bringing greater conceptual clarity to gendered aspects of the desistance process and how these manifest in a colonial setting. It will appeal to students and scholars of criminology desistance gender studies recovery from addiction and to practitioners and policy makers in these fields.
