

Injection amount control

The system controls the injector, mainly based on the signals from engine speed and accelerator opening angle or the designated speed of machine control unit, to maintain the optimum injection amount.

Injection pressure control

The system controls the injection pressure by controlling fuel pressure in common rail. It calculates the appropriate pressure in common rail on the basis of engine speed, fuel injection amount, etc., and discharges the proper amount of fuel by operating supply pump resulting in pressure feed to common rail.

Injection timing control

This is substitute for a timer function. The system calculates the fuel injection timing on the basis of mainly engine speed, injection amount, etc., and controls the injector.

Injection rate control

To improve combustion in cylinders, the system injects a little fuel (pre-injection) and ignites it at the beginning, then perform the second injection (main injection) after the first ignition. It controls these injection timing and injection amount by operating the injector.

Maximum fuel injection amount

Maximum fuel injection amount is the fuel injection amount calculated according to adjustment of injection amount at starting its coolant temperature, control of maximum injection amount by boost pressure, control of fuel injection amount at high altitude by barometric pressure, etc.

Correction between cylinders

This is not used for this engine.
