Dictionary of Historical and Comparative Linguistics R. L. Trask, 2019-08-08 With nearly 2400 entries this dictionary covers every aspect of the subject from the most venerable work to the exciting advances of the last few years many of which have not even made it into textbooks yet

The Origin of Speech Peter F. MacNeilage, 2010 This book explores the origin and evolution of speech The human speech system is in a league of its own in the animal kingdom and its possession dwarfs most other evolutionary achievements During every second of speech we unconsciously use about 225 distinct muscle actions To investigate the evolutionary origins of this prodigious ability Peter MacNeilage draws on work in linguistics cognitive science evolutionary biology and animal behaviour He puts forward a neo Darwinian account of speech as a process of descent in which ancestral vocal capabilities became modified in response to natural selection pressures for more efficient communication His proposals include the crucial observation that present day infants learning to produce speech reveal constraints that were acting on our ancestors as they invented new words long ago This important and original investigation integrates the latest research on modern speech capabilities their acquisition and their neurobiology including the issues surrounding the cerebral hemispheric specialization for speech It will interest a wide range of readers in cognitive neuro and evolutionary science as well as all those seeking to understand the nature and evolution of speech and human communication

Why Do Languages Change? Larry Trask, 2009-12-24 The first recorded English name for the make up we now call blusher was paint in 1660 In the 1700s a new word rouge displaced paint and remained in standard usage for around two centuries Then in 1965 an advertisement coined a new word for the product blusher Each generation speaks a little differently and every language is constantly changing It is not only words that change every aspect of a language changes over time pronunciation word meanings and grammar Packed with fascinating examples of changes in the English language over time this entertaining book explores the origin of words and place names the differences between British and American English and the apparent eccentricities of the English spelling system Amusingly written yet deeply instructive it will be enjoyed by anyone involved in studying the English language and its history as well as anyone interested in how and why languages change

Fashioning Inland Communities Yaari Felber-Seligman, 2025 When viewed from the economic centers of the Indian or Atlantic Oceans the Ruvuma region of East Africa crossing what is now Tanzania Malawi and Mozambique would look like a periphery But the same factors that marginalize the region historically brought distinct opportunities In Fashioning Inland Communities Yaari Felber Seligman traces the long history from the first millennium CE into the twentieth century of Ruvuma trade practices within a changing world Felber Seligman argues that Ruvuma trade should be understood fundamentally as a set of voluntary choices undertaken and revised to further communities aspirations Ruvuma used fashion to build varied communities from local to pan regional reflecting the dynamic relationships among inland groups Examples of Ruvuma popular fashions reveal processes of meaning making and community building that call for us to expand our attention to the ways in which East African peoples interacted alongside as well as beyond trade networks that sourced prestige and commercial goods Popular culture here emerges as a heterarchical force that shaped lasting multidirectional connections across and between Ruvuma and their neighbors As both a subject and a strategy for analysis the history of popular fashion shifts how we view histories of small decentralized societies as they encounter larger economies Felber Seligman demonstrates that this has implications for our understanding not only of trade but of material culture community gender and family

Historical Linguistics and the Comparative Study of African Languages Gerrit Jan Dimmendaal, 2011 This advanced historical linguistics course book deals with the historical and comparative study of African languages The first part functions as an elementary introduction to the comparative method involving the establishment of lexical and grammatical cognates the reconstruction of their historical development techniques for the subclassification of related languages and the use of language internal evidence more specifically the application of internal reconstruction Part II addresses language contact phenomena and the status of language in a wider cultural historical and ecological context Part III deals with the relationship between comparative linguistics and other disciplines In this rich course book the author presents valuable views on a number of issues in the comparative study of African languages more specifically concerning genetic diversity on the African continent the status of pidginised and creolised languages language mixing and grammaticalisation

Approaches to Measuring Linguistic Differences Lars Borin, Anju Saxena, 2013-10-14 The present volume collects contributions addressing different aspects of the measurement of linguistic differences a topic which probably is as old as language itself but at the same time has acquired renewed interest over the last decade or so reflecting a rapid development of data intensive computing in all fields of research including linguistics
