Social Judgment and Decision Making Joachim I. Krueger, 2012-05-04 This volume brings together classic key concepts and innovative theoretical ideas in the psychology of judgment and decision making in social contexts The chapters of the first section address the basic psychological processes underlying judgment and decision making The guiding question is What information comes to mind and how is it transformed The second section poses the question of how social judgments and decisions are to be evaluated The chapters in this section present new quantitative models that help separate various forms of accuracy and bias The third section shows how judgments and decisions are shaped by ecological constraints These chapters show how many seemingly complex configurations of social information are tractable by relatively simple statistical heuristics The fourth section explores the relevance of research on judgment and decision making for specific tasks of personal or social relevance These chapters explore how individuals can efficiently select mates form and maintain friendship alliances judiciously integrate their attitudes with those of a group and help shape policies that are rational and morally sound The book is intended as an essential resource for senior undergraduates postgraduates researchers and practitioners

Teaching Decision Making To Adolescents Jonathan Baron, Rex V. Brown, 2012-11-12 This book describes a variety of programs firmly based in psychological theory and modern decision analysis that are suitable for teaching adolescents how to improve both their own decision making skills and their understanding of the decision making of others Providing practical advice as well as theoretical analysis this volume addresses general questions such as the nature and rationale of the enterprise its implementation and its evaluation Relevant to several current adolescent problems including drug abuse this is an excellent source either as research new curriculum or enrichment of old curriculum Group Agency Christian List, Philip Pettit, 2011-04-07 Are companies churches and states genuine agents How do we explain their behaviour Can we treat them as accountable for their actions List and Pettit offer original arguments grounded in cutting edge work on social choice economics and philosophy to show there really are group agents over and above the individual agents who compose them A Primer of Judgment and Decision Making Richard Tunney, 2024-04-15 The book is intended as a primer and discusses the main areas within judgment and decision making However these topics are not siloed Instead a narrative arc throughout the book has a higher level of critical appraisal of the key concepts and how they relate to some of the big questions about the nature of human rationality The book begins by introducing two perspectives on rationality The first describes how we decide on the goodness of a decision This is a surprisingly recent concept called Rational Choice Theory which was formed from a collection of books written around the time of the Second World War that deal with how we think about risk as a probability and goodness as utility In short Rational Choice Theory argues that to be rational people should always make the decision that maximizes subjective expected utility The book goes on to describe the consensus view that emerged in the late 1960s and came to dominate our thinking about decision making namely that people rarely make rational decisions In fact many Nobel prizes have been handed out for work showing that humans are not rational creatures e g Daniel Kahneman Richard Thaler Robert Shiller The book concludes with recent theoretical developments in our understanding of how people make decisions that reconcile Rational Choice Theory with human irrationality Although aimed primarily at second year undergraduates studying judgement and decision making as a core component of cognitive psychology the book will also be relevant to third year electives in and MSc programmes The book will also interest undergraduates studying economics and undergraduates studying more general degrees in liberal arts or natural science As an introductory text the book assumes no prior knowledge of judgement and decision making cognitive psychology or economics However the level of the book assumes that the reader is familiar with academic texts and has experience of critical thinking A key requirement of the reader is a willingness to relate academic concepts to the real world and to try and understand the bigger picture about human psychology and its place in society Acumenous Game-Based Learning in Simulation Games Souad Slyman, 2024-12-23 Drawing on a comprehensive theoretical foundation encompassing socio constructivism social learning and motivation this book offers a new theoretical contribution and sheds light on the transformative power of acumenous game based learning to reengage learners with Mathematics and Statistics Education Foregrounding six years of research into simulation games and exploring inquisitional and acumenous theory the book ultimately explores the power of science and game based technologies applying theoretical knowledge to practice in order to reframe negative connotations associated with mathematical and statistical learning The chapters explore maths anxiety and resilience as well as understanding dyscalculia and its ramifications introducing a novel theoretical framework that will redefine traditional teaching paradigms Ultimately exploring the powerful potential of simulation games as motivational and pedagogical tools to redress the complex societal problem of negative emotions toward Mathematics and Statistics Education readers will gain invaluable insights into unlocking new learning opportunities paving the way for a future where mathematics and statistics become accessible engaging and empowering for all This book is of benefit to postgraduate students scholars and academics in the fields of educational technology mathematics education and teaching and learning in higher education more broadly
