Tymieniecka, 2012-12-06 Tymieniecka's phenomenology of life reverses current priorities stressing the primogenital role of aesthetic enjoyment rather than cognition as typifying the Human Condition The present collection offers clues to a crucial breakthrough in the perennial uncertainties about the powers and prerogatives of the human mind It proposes human creativity as the pivot of the mind's genesis and its endowment In the midst of the current defiance of the transcendental certainties of cognition this turn to the creative act of the human being represents a radical reversion to an approach to human powers that is predominated by the aesthetic virtualities of the Human Condition The collection lays down the foundations for a new discovery of the human mind addressing the plumbing of the functional system that originates in the creative potentiality of the Human Condition undercutting the currently prevalent empirical reductionism Chemical News and Journal of Industrial Science ,1907 Science for All Peter J. Bowler,2009-10-15 Recent scholarship has revealed that pioneering Victorian scientists endeavored through voluminous writing to raise public interest in science and its implications But it has generally been assumed that once science became a profession around the turn of the century this new generation of scientists turned its collective back on public outreach Science for All debunks this apocryphal notion Peter J Bowler surveys the books serial works magazines and newspapers published between 1900 and the outbreak of World War II to show that practicing scientists were very active in writing about their work for a general readership Science for All argues that the social environment of early twentieth century Britain created a substantial market for science books and magazines aimed at those who had benefited from better secondary education but could not access higher learning Scientists found it easy and profitable to write for this audience Bowler reveals and because their work was seen as educational they faced no hostility from their peers But when admission to colleges and universities became more accessible in the 1960s this market diminished and professional scientists began to lose interest in writing at the nonspecialist level Eagerly anticipated by scholars of scientific engagement throughout the ages Science for All sheds light on our own era and the continuing tension between science and public understanding Conceptual metaphor and embodied cognition in science learning Tamer Amin,Fredrik Jeppsson,Jesper Haglund,2018-10-03 Scientific concepts are abstract human constructions invented to make sense of complex natural phenomena Scientists use specialised languages diagrams and mathematical representations of various kinds to convey these abstract constructions This book uses the perspectives of embodied cognition and conceptual metaphor to explore how learners make sense of these concepts That is it is assumed that human cognition including scientific cognition is grounded in the body and in the material and social contexts in which it is embedded Understanding abstract concepts is therefore grounded via metaphor in knowledge derived from sensory and motor experiences arising from interaction with the physical world The volume consists of nine chapters that examine a number of intertwined themes how systematic metaphorical mappings are implicit in scientific language diagrams mathematical representations and the gestures used by scientists how scientific modelling relies fundamentally on metaphor and can be seen as a form of narrative cognition how implicit metaphors can be the sources of learner misconceptions how conceptual change and the acquisition of scientific expertise involve learning to coordinate the use of multiple implicit metaphors and how effective instruction can build on recognising the embodied nature of scientific cognition and the role of metaphor in scientific thought and learning The volume also includes three extended commentaries from leading researchers in the fields of cognitive linguistics the learning sciences and science education in which they reflect on theoretical methodological and pedagogical issues raised in the book This book was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Science Education
