Wheels Of Misfortune Rise And Fall Of The British Motor Industry:

Wheels of Misfortune Jonathan Wood,1988 An investigation into the successes and failures of the British car industry over the last century The author examines the role of the management trade unions and government chronicling specific examples The British Motor Industry, 1945-94 Timothy Whisler,1999-05-06 A fascinating and well researched look at the British motor industry which will appeal to both academic readers and practitioners alike Why are there now no major car manufacturers in Britain Whisler considers this and the surrounding issues making valuable comparisons with overseas manufacturers operating both in the UK and abroad which provide us with additional interest and insight Based upon careful use of company archives this book covers in particular the issues of product development quality design and range ensuring that The British Motor Industry is destined to make a distinctive contribution to our understanding of the performance of UK manufacturers The Rise and Decline of the British Motor Industry Roy A. Church,1995-09-14 A concise 1995 review of the strengths and weaknesses of the British motor industry during the one hundred years since its foundation The European Rescue of the Nation-state Alan S. Milward,2000 Newly revised and updated this second edition is the classic economic and political account of the origins of the European Community book offers a challenging interpretation of the history of the western European state and European integration Between Imitation and Innovation Robert Boyer,Elsie Charron,Ulrich Jurgens,Steven Tolliday,1998-11-19 Recent years have seen intense debates among management and academics on the rise of lean production and Japanization Some authors have stressed the universal impact of new forms of work organization and best practice while others have questioned the limits of convergence stressed the weight of national contexts or societal effects or highlighted the evolutionary effects of unpredictability in the external environment The international automobile industry has been a focus for much of this debate and this book written by a team of leading international researchers in the field uses this industry to examine in detail the actual practice of the transfer and adaptation of productive models and the trajectories of innovation compromise and failure that can result Case studies cover in detail the Japanese transplant experience in North America and the global experience of hybrid production systems in Europe Latin America and Asia The book contributes to theoretical discussions about the transfer adaptation or convergence of productive models In particular the authors argue that direct transplantation or imitation of these models is rarely feasible or even desirable Systems cannot be transferred without being significantly reshaped Instead the book focuses on the process of hybridization the complex interaction of productive models with national and societal effects Hybridization it is argued is inevitable But this should be seen not simply as a process of compromise and retreat but also as an important dynamic of innovation and learning This book is from the French based international research network GERPISA Groupe d etude de rcherche permanent sur l industrie et les salaires de l automobile See related titles below Merging Traffic John A. C. Conybeare,2004 John Conybeare examines the motivations at work behind the consolidation of the automotive industry worldwide into six giant conglomerates He shows that the publicly anticipated goals are not always achieved and reveals that the real reasons behind mergers are not always what they seem to be Canada and the End of Empire Phillip

Buckner,2007-10-01 Sir John Seeley once wrote that the British Empire was acquired in a fit of absence of mind Whatever the truth of this comment it is certainly arguable that the Empire was dismantled in such a fit This collection deals with a neglected subject in post Confederation Canadian history the implications to Canada and Canadians of British decolonization and the end of empire Canada and the End of Empire looks at Canadian diplomatic relations with the United Kingdom and the United States the Suez crisis the changing economic relationship with Great Britain in the 1950s and 1960s the role of educational and cultural institutions in maintaining the British connection the royal tour of 1959 the decision to adopt a new flag in 1964 the efforts to find a formula for repatriating the constitution the Canadianization of the Royal Canadian Navy and the attitude of First Nations to the changed nature of the Anglo Canadian relationship Historians in Commonwealth countries tend to view the end of British rule from a nationalist perspective Canada and the End of Empire challenges this view and demonstrates the centrality of imperial history in Canadian historiography An important addition to the growing canon of empire studies and imperial history this book will be of interest to historians of the Commonwealth and to scholars and students interested in the relationship between colonialism and nationalism Shaping the Future Horst

British Car Advertising of the 1960s Heon Stevenson, 2015-03-27 During the 1960s the automobile finally secured its position as an indispensable component of daily life in Britain Car ownership more than doubled from approximately one car for every 10 people in 1960 to one car for every 4.8 people by 1970 Consumers no longer asked Do we need a car but What car shall we have This well illustrated history analyzes how both domestic car manufacturers and importers advertised their products in this growing market identifying trends and themes Over 180 advertisement illustrations are included

The British Motor Industry James Foreman-Peck, Sue Bowden, Alan McKinlay, 1995 The story is taken back to the beginnings of the motor car Labour relations and management policy are analysed in detail as is the impact of government policy Particular attention is paid to national demand conditions and to demand shocks as formative influences Book jacket

The Market Makers Peter Scott, 2017-09-15 During the twentieth century affluence both at the level of the individual household and that of society as a whole became intimately linked with access to a range of prestige consumer durables The Market Makers charts the inter war origins of a process that would eventually transform these features of modern life from being luxuries to necessities for most British families Peter Scott examines how producers and retailers succeeded in creating mass though not universal market for new suites of furniture radios modern housing and some electrical and gas appliances while also exploring why some other goods such as refrigerators telephones and automobiles failed to reach the mass market in Britain before the 1950s Creating mass markets presented a formidable challenge for manufacturers and retailers Consumer durables required large markets Most involved significant research and development costs Some such as the telephone radio and car were dependent on complementary investments in infrastructure All required intensive marketing usually including expensive advertising in national newspapers and magazines while some also needed mass production methods and output volumes to make them affordable to a mass market This study charts the pioneering efforts of entrepreneurs many of whom though once household names are now largely forgotten to provide consumer durables at a price affordable to a mass market and to persuade a sometimes reluctant public to embrace the new products and the consumer credit that their purchase required In doing so Scott shows that contrary to much received wisdom there was a consumer durables revolution in inter war Britain at least for certain highly prioritised goods
