Lowering the Bar Marc Galanter, 2006-08-08 What do you call 600 lawyers at the bottom of the sea. Marc Galanter calls it an opportunity to investigate the meanings of a rich and time honored genre of American humor lawyer jokes. Lowering the Bar analyzes hundreds of jokes from Mark Twain classics to contemporary anecdotes about Dan Quayle Johnnie Cochran and Kenneth Starr. Drawing on representations of law and lawyers in the mass media political discourse and public opinion surveys Galanter finds that the increasing reliance on law has coexisted uneasily with anxiety about the legalization of society. Informative and always entertaining his book explores the tensions between Americans deep seated belief in the law and their ambivalence about lawyers. The ^AHappy Lawyer Nancy Levit, Douglas O. This book offers first person accounts of life on death row that still holds for condemned men and women today. The accessibility the authors had to Texas Death Row in 1979 to sit in the cells and listen is unimaginable in today's closed prison environment. Today however conditions on Texas's Death Row are far more punishing and brutal and while the number of death sentences has declined the number of sentences of life without parole has increased hugely. This second edition updates and expands on the original stories that these men told revealing the names of those men whose stories have ended with either exoneration or death. New photographs enhance the text to give it a full picture of the brutal conditions that these prisoners experienced. The Last Good Paradise Tatjana Soli, 2015-02-10 From Tatjana Soli the bestselling author of The Lotus Eaters and The Forgetting Tree comes a black comedy.
