Hair, Headwear, and Orthodox Jewish Women Amy K. Milligan, 2014-09-24 Hair Headwear and Orthodox Jewish Women comments on hair covering based on an ethnographic study of the lives of Orthodox Jewish women in a small non metropolitan synagogue It brings the often overlooked stories of these women to the forefront and probes questions as to how their location in a small community affects their behavioral choices particularly regarding the folk practice of hair covering A kallah or bride makes the decision as to whether or not she will cover her hair after marriage In doing so she externally announces her religious affiliation in particular her commitment to maintaining an Orthodox Jewish home Hair covering practices are also unique to women's traditions and point out the importance of examining the women especially because their cultural roles may be marginalized in studies as a result of their lack of a central role in worship This study questions their contribution to Orthodoxy as well as their concept of Jewish identity and the ways in which they negotiate this identity with ritualized and traditional behavior ultimately bringing into question the meaning of tradition in a modern world

Women's Hats, Headdresses and Hairstyles Georgine de Courtais, 2013-01-16 453 illustrations provide authentic record of over 1 300 years of changing hairstyles and headwear in England everything from wimples and crespines worn in Anglo Saxon times to early Victorian bonnets and pillboxes

No Strings Attached Rachel Nafziger Hartzler, 2013-04-30 No Strings Attached is the story of a Mennonite congregation in Indiana that existed for eighty six years The congregation began during the social and religious turmoil of the 1920s when some Mennonites in North America held to rigid doctrines and ethics implemented by central authority and others operated with a congregational polity and became more assimilated into secular culture The struggle between these two different understandings of faithfulness was most passionately played out in northern Indiana Placing the narrative of this congregation within the context of 500 years of Mennonite history illustrates the grace and the tension that has both beset and empowered a unique group of people who began as radical reformers Although no strings attached refers to the women's headwear during the 1920s which had no strings it could also be the story of the pastor eating lunch on the peak of the steep roof of the church building Reflecting on stories of these Mennonite people is an invitation to move into the future with courageous hope Believing and behaving differently has not prevented Middlebury Mennonites from treating each other respectfully living in a community of love joy and peace and offering God's healing and hope to each other and to the world
