

Key Facts

- narrator - The Book Thief is narrated by Death (yes, that Death) the day after the death of the main character, Liesel.
- point of view - Death is an omniscient narrator who switches between first person and a closed third person point of view, describing all the main characters' thoughts and emotions as well as his own. He mostly sticks to the events during the years of World War Two, though occasionally he flashes forward to relay different characters' fates.
- tone - The tone is intimate and conversational, with the narrator at times interrupting himself or interjecting reactions to the narrative. Though his voice employs humor, the overall sense is of sadness.
- tense - Past tense with flashbacks and occasional flash forwards.
- setting (time) - Primarily World War Two, January 1939 – October 1943
- setting (place) - Primarily the fictional German town of Molching, a suburb of Munich
- protagonist - Liesel Meminger
- major conflict - After losing her family in the lead-up to World War II, Liesel must establish her identity as she helps her foster family hide a Jew from the Nazis and deals with the hardships of war-time Germany.
- rising action - Given to foster parents after the death of her brother, Liesel adjusts to life with a new family and friends and begins learning the value of words as Germany moves gradually toward war and her family hides Max, a Jewish man, from Nazi authorities.
- climax - Liesel encounters Max being marched to a concentration camp, precipitating a crisis in her in which she questions the value of words.
- falling action - Liesel begins writing her own story and then must learn to move on after all her family and friends are killed in a bomb raid.
- foreshadowing - Death describes the three times he saw Liesel; Death announces at the beginning of Part Five that Rudy will die in two years; Death saying that Rudy goes from a stealer of bread to a giver of bread; Death suggesting that Zucker's dislike of Hans will cost him his life; Death hinting that Liesel will be a great writer some day.

Multicultural Children's Literature Donna E. Norton, 2009 With the growing number of ethnic minority students in public schools it is very important for teachers librarians and all those who work with children to have an understanding of appropriate multicultural literature This book and the literature selections are designed to develop heightened sensitivity and understanding of people from various cultures and traditions through the selection of carefully chosen literature It includes a balance of research about the culture and the literature a discussion of authentic literature for students from early childhood through young adults and teaching activities designed to develop higher cognitive abilities The book uses a unique five phase approach for the study of multicultural literature that has been field tested The Voice of the Narrator in Children's Literature Charlott Otten, Gary D. Schmidt, 1989-06-26 As Otten and Schmidt note in their preface voice is a broad metaphor Thus the 41 essays in this collection provide varied approaches examining point of view focus selection of details tone and even illustrations as part of the narrative identity Eight genres including picture books fantasy realism and biography receive separate study in generally brief articles by writers and more substantial analyses by critics In her contribution Jill Paton Walsh describes contemporary criticism as an impenetrable thicket of technical terms In most cases the critics here avoid jargon They speak clearly offering practical criticism accessible to anyone seriously concerned about narrative technique in children's literature Choice Although children's literature is now a recognized branch of English and American literature much of the criticism of it has focused on teaching methodology history and basic exposition Since children's books are no less a part of the literary tradition than adult books there is room for new approaches to children's literature While the importance of the voice of the narrator is emerging in criticism of adult fiction poetry and nonfiction little has been written about this subject in children's literature Examining the voice of the narrator can identify hitherto unexplored and unrecognized aspects of children's literature The essays in this collection were contributed by noted authors and critics Their inquiry is divided into eight genres the illustrated book folk literature and myth fantasy realism poetry historical fiction biography and informational books and each genre is discussed in terms of the authorial voice and the critical voice Each of the essays works toward an understanding of how the voice of the narrator functions in a given work or in the larger corpus of an author's work The result is not only a greater understanding of how specific authors shape their material and how authors use voice for particular effects but also how the narrator differs functionally from one genre to the next This unique essay collection is particularly suited for use in children's literature courses Because the contributors are some of the most significant authors and critics in children's literature in English it should also be part of any academic library's holdings in the criticism of children's literature in particular and literary criticism in general
