Zoomscape Architecture In Motion And Media:

Zoomscape Mitchell Schwarzer, 2004-03 Although a few among us are intrepid architectural tourists visiting buildings and landscapes our cameras at the ready most of us experience architecture through the windshield of a moving vehicle the architectural experience reduced to a blurry and momentary drive by And the rest of our architectural tourism is through the images of cameras movies and television programs that is through the lens of another's eye Architectural historian Mitchell Schwarzer calls this new mediated architectural experience the zoomscape In this thought provoking book he argues that the perception of architecture has been fundamentally altered by the technologies of transportation and the camera we now look at buildings neighborhoods cities and even entire continents as we ride in trains cars and planes and or as we view photographs movies and television Zoomscape shows how we now perceive buildings and places at high speeds across great distances through edited and multiple reproductions Nowadays our views of the architectural landscape are modulated by the accelerator pedal and the remote control by studio production techniques and airplane flight paths Using examples from high art and popular culture from the novels of Don DeLillo to the opening credits of The Sopranos Mitchell Schwarzer shows that the zoomscape has brought about unprecedented and often marvelous new ways of perceiving the built environment

Practicing Utopia Rosemary Wakeman, 2016-04-01 The typical town springs up around a natural resource a river an ocean an exceptionally deep harbor or in proximity to a larger already thriving town Not so with new towns which are created by decree rather than out of necessity and are often intended to break from the tendencies of past development New towns aren't a new thing ancient Phoenicians named their colonies Qart Hadasht or New City but these utopian developments saw a resurgence in the twentieth century In Practicing Utopia Rosemary Wakeman gives us a sweeping view of the new town movement as a global phenomenon From Tapiola in Finland to Islamabad in Pakistan Cergy Pontoise in France to Irvine in California Wakeman unspools a masterly account of the golden age of new towns exploring their utopian qualities and investigating what these towns can tell us about contemporary modernization and urban planning She presents the new town movement as something truly global defying a Cold War East West dichotomy or the north south polarization of rich and poor countries Wherever these new towns were located whatever their size whether famous or forgotten they shared a utopian lineage and conception that in each case reveals how residents and planners imagined their ideal urban future

The Future Revisited Francoise Schiltz, 2012-05-04 The Future Revisited examines Hollywood adaptations of Jules Verne stories and is an interdisciplinary study that offers a fresh perspective on film history French literature science fiction and America in the 1950s It is a fascinating and authoritative account of how the stories of Jules Verne a distinguished French novelist better known around the world as the father of science fiction and an accurate predictor of much of the twentieth century found particular resonance with US filmmakers in the 1950s Schiltz looks at four of the most popular films Around the World in 80 Days 20 000 Leagues Under the Sea Journey to the Center of the Earth and Mysterious Island and argues that there were many parallels between Verne's technological adventures and postwar America with its theme parks shopping malls Levittowns and plethora of consumer goods Just as nineteenth century readers of Verne's books could experience travel from the comfort of their seats viewers of these films could be swept away on an imaginary flight a voyage in a submarine or a trek to the earth's core all in spectacular widescreen and with ground breaking special effects Yet the pleasures offered were ambivalent encounters with exotic places and cultures might have led the audience to question common assumptions such as gender roles seeing futuristic domestic spaces could highlight the confusion of attitudes to private and public life in suburbia and the films blending of nostalgia and progress might draw attention to society's tug of war between innovation and conformity

Time for mapping Sybille Lammes, Chris Perkins, Alex Gekker, Sam Hind, Clancy Wilmott, Daniel Evans, 2018-06-29 Maps take place in time as well as representing space The Google map on your smartphone appears to fix the world serving as a practical spatial tool but in practice is deployed in ways that draw attention to memories rhythm synchronicity sequence and duration This interdisciplinary collection focuses on how these temporal aspects of mapping might be understood at a time when mapping technologies have been profoundly changed by digital developments It contrasts different aspects of this temporality bringing together experts from critical cartography media studies and science and technology studies Together the chapters offer a unique interdisciplinary focus revealing the complex and social ways in which time is wrapped up with digital technologies and revealed in everyday mapping tasks from navigating across cities to serving as scientific groundings for news stories from managing smart cities to visual art practice It brings time back into the map An electronic edition of this book is freely available under a Creative Commons CC BY NC ND licence the places they depict or film Topics include fantasy quests in computer games celebrity walking tours dark tourism sites Hobbiton as theme park surf movies and social gangs of Disneyland How physical virtual and imagined locations create a sense of place through their immediate experience or visitation is undergoing a revolution in technology travel modes and tourism behaviour This edited collection explores the rapidly evolving field of screen tourism and the affective impact of landscape with provocative questions and investigations of social groups fan culture new technology and the wider changing trends in screen tourism We provide critical examples of affective landscapes across a wide range of mediums from the big screen to the small screen and locations This book will appeal to students and scholars in film and tourism as well as geography design media and communication studies game studies and digital humanities

Intimate Metropolis Vittoria Di Palma, Diana Periton, Marina Lathouri, 2008-09-25 Intimate Metropolis explores connections between the modern city its architecture and its citizens by questioning traditional conceptualizations of public and private Rather than focusing purely on public spaces such as streets caf s gardens or department stores or on the domestic sphere the book investigates those spaces and practices that engage both the urban and the domestic the public and the private The legal political and administrative frameworks of urban life are seen as constituting private individuals sense of self in a wide range of European and world cities from Amsterdam and Barcelona to London and Chicago Providing authoritative new perspectives on individual citizenship as it relates to both public and private space in depth case studies of major European American and other world cities and written by an international set of contributors this volume is key reading for all students of architecture

Writing the Stage Coach Nation Ruth Livesey, 2016-09-08 Why is it that so many of the best loved novels of the Victorian era take place not in the steam powered railway present in which they were published but in the very recent past Most works by Dickens Bront Eliot and Hardy set action neither in the present nor in a definitively historical epoch but rather in a just past of collective memory a vanishing but still tangible world moving by stage and mail coach It is easy to overlook the fact that Jane Eyre Bleak House and Middlemarch for example are in this sense historical novels recreating places and times that are just slipping from the horizon of here and now Ruth Livesey brings to the surface the historical consciousness of such novels of the just past and explores how they convey an idea of a national belonging that can be experienced through a sense of local place The journey by public coach had long been an analogy for the form of the novel as it took shape in the eighteenth century smooth engineered roads and the rapid circulation of print was one means by which Britain was reimagined as a modern peaceable and communicative nation in the aftermath of the Napoleonic wars But by the later 1840s the end of the stage coach was assured and that made it a highly charged figure of a lost national modernity In its halts relays stops at inns and crossing points the stage and mail coach system offered a different experience of mobility and being in place passages of flight and anchoring points from the vectors of the railway that radiated out from industrial and urban centres This book opens by examining the writing of the stage coach nation in Walter Scott s fiction and in the work of the radical journalists William Hazlitt and William Cobbett Livesey suggests that in turning to the just past of the stage coach imaginary later novels by Dickens Bront and Eliot reach out to the possibility of a nation knitted together by the affect of strongly felt local belonging This vision is of a communicative nation at its liveliest when the smooth passage of characters and words are interrupted and overset delivering readers and protagonists to local places thick with the presence of history writ small

Urban Film and Everyday Practice Alexandra Parker, 2016-05-28 This book explores the ways in which films of Johannesburg assist residents of the city to bridge the divisions and inequalities of contemporary urban space through the four lenses of materiality identity mobility and crime Films influence the everyday practices of urban residents and contribute to their knowledge of the city Urban Film and Everyday Practice examines the relationship between the city and its representations through the four themes to deconstruct the complexity of the city and to understand the complicated nature of residents interactions with urban space Johannesburg serves as a case study for examining the divisions and inequalities that cities around the globe are currently facing
