

Sit still, young man, while I measure your head!

I met up with some old friends last week and we got talking about our childhoods and how our parents used to embarrass us. One friend told us how her dad used to turn up after the school disco to pick her up - in his dressing gown and slippers! In front of everyone! Another talked about her mum who would wear her clothes, including mini-skirts and trainers - so age-inappropriate! Another talked about her dad, who would insist on performing stupid magic tricks to all her friends. But my story beat them all! I told them about my dad and a very strange habit he had. Whenever my sister Alice or I got a new boyfriend, my dad insisted on measuring their heads. That's right! He used to measure their heads! He used to sit them down and explain that he was not insisting, oh no, it was quite voluntary, but he really wanted that measurement. Some boys just fled, ran out the door and I never saw them again, but usually, they would go along with it. They would sit there bemused, wondering what on earth was going on, while my dad got his tape measure out and measured the circumference of their head. They were probably thinking he had a nice hat to give them, or something. It wasn't that. My dad used to say he liked the measurement of a head to be in proportion to the body. He didn't like heads which were too small or too big. Alice and I used to argue with him about it, but not much. At the end of the day, he was a great dad and both Alice and I married wonderful men. And you know what - their heads are a perfect shape and size. By Marina.
