Valuing Assessment in Science Education: Pedagogy, Curriculum, Policy Deborah Corrigan,Richard Gunstone,Alister Jones,2013-06-05 Assessment is a fundamental issue in research in science education in curriculum development and implementation in science education as well as in science teaching and learning This book takes a broad and deep view of research involving assessment in science education across contexts and cultures from whole countries to individual classrooms and across forms and purposes from assessment in the service of student learning to policy implications of system wide assessment It examines the relationships between assessment measurement and evaluation explores assessment philosophies and practices in relation to curriculum and scientific literacy learning and details the relationships between assessment and science education policy The third in a series Valuing Assessment in Science Education has chapters from a range of international scholars from across the globe and staff from Monash University King s College London and University of Waikato The two previous books in the series examined research relevant to the re emergence of values in science education and teaching across the spectrum of science education as well as across cultural contexts through the professional knowledge of science teaching This third book now moves to examine different aspects of generating understanding about what science is learnt how it is learnt and how it is valued Valuing Assessment in Science Education will appeal to all those with some engagement with and or use of research in science education including research students academics curriculum development agencies assessment authorities and policy makers It will also be of interest to all classroom science teachers who seek to keep abreast of the latest research and development and thinking in their area of professional concern
