Intelligence Analysis in Theater Joint Intelligence Centers Robert D. Folker, 2000 A growing number of JMIC students have begun to incorporate replicable research design into their theses This distillation of Master Sergeant Folker's theses shows how fruitful this approach can be By taking advantage of on site research funds available from the College he managed in brief visits to four Unified Command Joint Intelligence Centers to carry out a controlled experiment to measure the impact of analyst familiarity with and use of one structured analytic technique hypothesis testing His findings if corroborated by follow on studies could have a substantial impact on Intelligence Community analytical practices and even some influence on how senior policy officials react to analytical products Managers of analytical personnel might also note that structured methods would appear from this study of non specialized joint intelligence center analysts to be useful to specialized analysts who may be required to move beyond their areas of deep expertise to cover new or unfamiliar assignments

Announcement of Army Extension Courses United States. Department of the Army, 1966

Lessons From Kosovo: The KFOR Experience, 2002-01-01 Civil military unity of effort has been an essential yet frustrating elusive requirement for success in post cold war peace operations The need to coordinate collaborate and share information between civilian and military entities is on the rise and deemed essential requirements for success Today's information and communications technologies serve to facilitate the exchange of information among the disparate players of peace operations but the ability to actually realize open information sharing in real world coalition operations remains problematic The integration of relevant information and the timely dissemination of the processed information to interested parties in the field is well within the realities of today's technology Increased civil military involvement in peacekeeping and humanitarian operations around the world is matched in part by the rise in the number and complexity of these situations There are many more actors on today's peace operations landscape with competing as well as common interests and expectations The need to improve cooperation coordination and more open information sharing is on the rise Efforts to improve and facilitate more open working together and information sharing among the disparate participants must overcome a continuing lack of trust among the civil military actors obsolete national and international policies unrealistic legal and funding constraints and outdated organization cultural traditions and behavior patterns Additionally all actors need to better understand each other and the roles they can and should play in an increasingly complex operational environment In order to obtain closure and improve the future situation the actors must develop relationships based on mutual trust and there must be a clear understanding that cooperation coordination and information sharing is a two way street In reality inefficiencies are inherent in any multilateral activity and competing interests and fear of loss of power and prestige make unity of effort a desired objective but also one that will be difficult to achieve Furthermore information is power and can be an effective means to an end but only if it can be interpreted shared and used effectively for military political or civil use Information can also help reduce uncertainty and provide those that possess it a decided advantage in the decisionmaking process There continues to be a general lack of trust among the players coupled with the lack of a shared understanding of the added value through more open and improved information sharing Information sharing among the actors on the peace operations landscape continues to be largely a manual process These obstacles need to be recognized and to the extent possible practical recommendations developed for ameliorating them Application of new technology must go beyond simply modernizing existing practices and capabilities The civil military community needs to look at new ways of doing business and how the rapidly advancing information technology can be used to leverage the power of information to help achieve timely and appropriate success of peace operations The patterns of conflict for the post cold war environment are changing and so are the approaches to military command and control Advances in information technology have enabled organizations and individuals to more effectively leverage the power of information yet for coalition operations where information sharing is essential to meet mission needs it continues to be problematic The issue is not technology but largely the will on the part of organizations and individuals to make it happen There is also a number of policy doctrine C4ISR systems cultural and environmental challenges that influence the ability to achieve more open sharing of information in coalition operations
