Weekly Government Abstracts ,1980 The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1902 Strategy for Victory David Ian Hall,2007-12-30 Strategy for Victory The Development of British Tactical Air Power 1919 1943 examines the nature of the inter Service crisis between the British Army and the RAF over the provision of effective air support for the army in the Second World War Material for this book is drawn primarily from the rich collection of documents at the National Archives UK and other British archives The author makes a highly original point that Britain s independent RAF was in fact a disguised blessing for the Army and that the air force s independence was in part a key reason why a successful solution to the army s air support problems was found The analysis traces why the British army went to war in 1939 without adequate air support and how an effective system of support was organized by the RAF As such it is the first scholarly survey of the origins and development of British air support doctrine and practice during the early years of the Second World War The provision of direct air support was of central importance to the success enjoyed by Anglo American armies during the latter half of the Second World War First in North Africa and later in Italy and North West Europe American British and Empire armies fought most if not all of their battles with the knowledge that they enjoyed unassailable air superiority throughout the battle area This advantage

however was the product of a long and bitter dispute between the British Army and the Royal Air Force that began at the end of the First World War and continued virtually unabated until it was resolved in late 1942 and early 1943 when the 2nd Tactical Air Force was created. Battlefield experience and in particular success in North Africa combined with the hard work, wisdom and perseverance of Air Marshals Sir Arthur Tedder and Arthur Coningham, the active co-operation of General Bernard Montgomery and the political authority of Prime Minister Winston Churchill produced a uniquely British system that afforded the most comprehensive, effective and flexible air support provided by any air force during the war. The book is divided into two equal parts of five chapters. Part one surveys how the British Army went to war in 1939 without adequate air support and part two explains how an effective system of air support was organized by the middle years of the war. The analysis traces Britain's earliest experience with aircraft in the Great War 1914-1918, the inter-war period of doctrinal development and inter-Service rivalry and the major campaigns in France and the Middle East during the first half of the Second World War when the weaknesses in Army-RAF co-operation were first exposed and eventually resolved. As such it is the first scholarly survey of the origin and development of British air support doctrine and practice during the early years of the Second World War.

Rethinking Faecal Sludge Management in Emergency Settings Fiona Zakaria, 2019-07-24

The development of technology in the emergency sanitation sector has not been emphasised sufficiently considering that the management of human excreta is a basic requirement for every person. The lack of technology tailored to emergency situations complicates efforts to cater for sanitation needs in challenging humanitarian crisis. Concerns persist on the lack of faecal sludge management that considers the whole sanitation chain from containment until treatment. This study focused on the development of a smart emergency toilet termed the eSOS emergency sanitation operation system smart toilet to address the limitation in technical options. This toilet is based on the eSOS concept that takes into account the entire sanitation chain. This study also addresses the limited time for planning in emergencies by developing a decision support system DSS to help quick selection of optimal sanitation options. The aim was to enable users of the DSS to plan their emergency sanitation response within the shortest time possible. The study aims to contribute toward a better emergency sanitation response by application of technology advances.

Technical Abstract Bulletin, 1979 River Sedimentation Silke

Wieprecht, Stefan Haun, Karolin Weber, Markus Noack, Kristina Terheiden, 2016-11-30. Sediment dynamics in fluvial systems is of great ecological, economic and human health related significance worldwide. Appropriate management strategies are therefore needed to limit maintenance costs as well as minimize potential hazards to the aquatic and adjacent environments. Human intervention ranging from nutrient/pollutant release to physical modifications has a large impact on sediment quantity and quality and thus on river morphology as well as on ecological functioning. Truly understanding sediment dynamics requires as a consequence a multidisciplinary approach. River Sedimentation contains the peer-reviewed scientific contributions presented at the 13th International Symposium on River Sedimentation ISRS 2016 Stuttgart Germany 19-22

September 2016 and includes recent accomplishments in theoretical developments numerical modelling experimental laboratory work field investigations and monitoring as well as management methodologies
