When Will invites Lily to meet his grandmother at the Saint Catherine Laboure care home for witches she learns the residents have been dying at an alarming rate Will's grandmother is scared she'll be next but they put it down to the paranoid ramblings of a dementia patient Until Will's grandmother dies unexpectedly for no apparent reason To find the killer Angelica volunteers to go undercover being one of the only older agents in the PIB Lily's magic reveals her mentor is in mortal danger but despite Lily's arguments Angelica takes the assignment Can Lily use her witchy skills to unravel the mystery before someone she loves becomes the next victim The 'halfpenny marvel' library, 1903 The Marvel (and sports stories). New ser. [of The Halfpenny marvel], 1904 News and the Human Interest Story Helen MacGill

Hughes, 1981 In this account of the growth of newspapers in modern industrial society Helen Hughes traces the development of a mass audience through analysis of the origins of the human interest story in the popular ballads of an earlier day She shows how such commonly found interests as a taste for news of the town ordinary gossip and moving or gripping tales with a legendary or mythic quality have reflected the tastes of ordinary folk from the days of illiterate audiences to the present She explains how these interests ultimately were combined with practical economic and political information to create the substance and demand for a popular press In describing the rise and fall of newspaper empires each with their special readership attractions Dr Hughes shows how technological innovation and idiosyncratic creativity were used by owners to capture and hold a reading audience Once this audience developed it could be fed a variety of messages beamed at reinforcing and maintaining both general and specific publics as well as a view of the world consonant with that of the publisher and major advertisers Hughes offers a persuasive argument for the continuing viability of this method for combined social control instruction and amusement captured by the association of news and the human interest story
