Unfinished Places: The Politics of (Re)making Cairo's Old Quarters Gehan Selim, 2016-11-10 The Emerging Politics of Re making Cairo s Old Quarters examines postcolonial planning practices that aimed to modernise Cairo s urban spaces The author examines the expanding field of postcolonial urbanism by linking the state s political ideologies and systems of governance with methods of spatial representations that aimed to transform the urban realm in Cairo Adopting an interdisciplinary approach the study draws on planning history and politics to develop a distinctive account of postcolonial planning in Cairo following Egypt s 1952 revolution The book widely connects the ideological role of a different type of politicised urbanism practised during the days of Nasser Sadat and Mubarak and the overarching policies institutions and attitudes involved in the visions for re building a new nation in Egypt By examining the notion of remaking urban spaces the study interprets the ambitions and powers of state policies for improving the spatial qualities of Cairo s old districts since the early 20th century These acts are situated in their spatial political and historical contexts of Cairo s heterogeneous old quarters and urban spaces particularly the remaking of one of the city s older quarts named Bulaq Abul Ela established during the Ottoman rule in the thirteenth century It therefore writes in a chronological sequence a narrative through time and space connecting various layers of historical and contemporary political phases for remaking Bulaq The endeavor is to explain this process from a spatial perspective in terms of the implications and consequences not only on places but also on the people's everyday practices By deeply investigating the problems and consequences the strengths and weaknesses and the state's reliability to achieve the remaking objectives the book reveals evidence that shifting forms of governance had anchored planning practices into a narrow path of creativity and responsive planning

Ecopolis Paul F. Downton, 2008-11-19 From 2008 for the first time in human history half of the world's population now live in cities Yet despite a wealth of literature on green architecture and planning there is to date no single book which draws together theory from the full range of disciplines from architecture planning and ecology which we must come to grips with if we are to design future cities which are genuinely sustainable Paul Downton's Ecopolis takes a major step along this path It highlights the urgent need to understand the role of cities as both agents of change and means of survival at a time when climate change has finally grabbed world attention and it provides a framework for designing cities that integrates knowledge both academic and practical from a range of relevant disciplines Identifying key theorists practitioners places and philosophies the book provides a solid theoretical context which introduces the concept of urban fractals and goes on to present a series of design and planning tools for achieving Sustainable Human Ecological Development SHED Combining knowledge from diverse fields to present a synthesis of urban ecology the book will provide a valuable resource for students researchers and practitioners in architecture construction planning geography and the traditional life sciences
