The Wind From The Hills:

The Wind from the Hills Jessica Stirling, 2000-06-26 Appassionata Fritz Bennicke Hart, 1913 Harvest the Wind Philip Warburg, 2012-04-17 Winds sweeping through the Great Plains once robbed the Farm Belt of its future stripping away overworked topsoil and creating the dreaded Dust Bowl of the 1930s Today those winds are bringing new hope to the declining rural communities of the central United States Nowhere is wind s promise more palpable than in Cloud County Kansas where the soaring turbines of the Meridian Way Wind Farm are boosting incomes and bringing green jobs to a community that has for decades watched its children drift away In Harvest the Wind Philip Warburg brings readers face to face with the people behind the green economy powered resurgence in Cloud County and communities like it across the United States This corner of Kansas is the first stop on an odyssey that introduces readers to farmers factory workers biologists and high tech entrepreneurs all players in a transformative industry that is taking hold across America and around the globe In this illuminating book Warburg reveals both the remarkable growth of a breakthrough technology and the formidable challenges it faces He visits epicenters of anti wind opposition as well as communities that have embraced wind farms as neighbors He guides readers through an Iowa turbine assembly plant that is struggling to compete in a global marketplace dominated by European and Chinese manufacturers And he looks at the thousands of miles that wind generated power will need to travel to reach American consumers Harvest the Wind is an earthly antidote to loftier treatises on global warming and green energy By showing us how practical solutions are being implemented at the local level Warburg offers an inspirational look at how we can all pursue a saner and more sustainable energy future while at the same time investing in the nation s infrastructure and jumpstarting its economy Preliminary Report on Uranium Deposits in the Wind River Basin, Wyoming Eugene W. Grutt, Jonathan P. Hadfield, Edward W. Smith, 1954 Decision and Control in Hybrid Wind Farms Harsh S. Dhiman, Dipankar Deb, 2019-09-28 This book focuses on two of the most important aspects of wind farm operation decisions and control The first part of the book deals with decision making processes and explains that hybrid wind farm operation is governed by a set of alternatives that the wind farm operator must choose from in order to achieve optimal delivery of wind power to the utility grid This decision making is accompanied by accurate forecasts of wind speed which must be known beforehand Errors in wind forecasting can be compensated for by pumping power from a reserve capacity to the grid using a battery energy storage system BESS Alternatives based on penalty cost are assessed using certain criteria and MCDM methods are used to evaluate the best choice Further considering the randomness in the dynamic phenomenon in wind farms a fuzzy MCDM approach is applied during the decision making process to evaluate the best alternative for hybrid wind farm operation Case studies from wind farms in the USA are presented together with numerical solutions to the problem In turn the second part deals with the control aspect and especially with yaw angle control which facilitates power maximization at wind farms A novel transfer function based methodology is presented that controls the wake center of the upstream turbine s lidar based numerical simulation is carried out for wind farm layouts and an adaptive control strategy is implemented to achieve the desired yaw angle for upstream turbines The proposed methodology is tested for two wind farm layouts Wake management is also implemented for hybrid wind farms where BESS life enhancement is studied The effect of yaw angle on the operational cost of BESS is assessed and case studies for wind farm datasets from the USA and Denmark are discussed Overall the book provides a comprehensive guide to decision and control aspects for hybrid wind farms which are particularly important from an industrial standpoint
